Heroes Are Gentle
Worse Than Tigers
Two Duels, One Real
Be Just to Elijah

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by Star Company

COMMANDER BYRD returned to the United States yesterday with Chamberlin and Byrd's three flying companions, Acosta, Noville and Balchen. This country delights to honor them all, and is proud to send such men to Europe, following Lindbergh.

Real courage is always gentle. Homer's "Mildest Manners and Gentlest Heart" are part of a fearless nature. Of all photographs taken of those fliers, the finest shows Commander Byrd standing beside a wounded French soldier, helpless in a wheel-chair. The expression on Byrd's face, pitying and tender, is that of a real hero. Happy the mother and father of such a son.

Hankow's news that China has had enough of "Red" Russian doctrines is not surprising.

Confucius, as great in China as ever, although he died ten years before Socrates was born, warned the Chinese against "oppressive government." Confucius saw, wailing beside a grave, a woman, who told him, "my husband's father was killed here by a tiger, and my husband also, and now my son has met the same fate."

Asked why she didn't move, she said, "Because there is here no oppressive government."

Confucius told his disciples never to forget that, and those disciples, descendants including practically all educated Chinamen of today, suspect that communistic government might be more oppressive than the capitalistic kind.

Tigers that eat your father, husband and son are not as bad as oppressive government. And theoretical government, of the bolshevik kind, with the best of intentions, might give a good imitation of tigers and oppressive government combined.

A gentleman in the movies, who says he is a grandnephew of Emperor Francis Joseph, and would probably be pained by publicity, wants to fight a duel with Count Laszlo Szechenyi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, has much to live for, and probably will NOT oblige.

As we rise in civilization and comfort, dueling falls off.

A real duel was fought in a Missouri penitentiary by two convicts, both called "refractory" and confined to "isolation quarters." Each stole a knife from the dining room and their duel started in the basement of the isolation quarters. When it was ended, one was dead, the other probably will die.

To understand this bitterness of hatred is difficult now. It was easy in Benvenuto Cellini's day.

Uldine Utley, fifteen-year-old revivalist, who says Billy Sunday is greater than Mussolini, because Sunday conquered the Devil, is in New York City saving souls. She saved forty last Sunday, and doubtless they will show gratitude when they meet her in heaven.

Miss Utley, who brings everything close to her hearers, says: "Lindbergh was not the first to make a non-stop flight—the Lord

Courtney Ready to Fly Here

London, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Captain Frank Courtney will hop off from Calshot at noon, tomorrow on his flight to New York, according to an official announcement today.

Captain Courtney plans to stop at Valentia, Ireland, and to make his second hop-off from that point when the weather is favorable.

The captain said that he would probably take the "Whale," his flying boat, up for a short night flight about ten this evening, after which the crew and mechanicians would work all night putting the last touches on his equipment.

When told that the weather off Valentia was reported to be bad, Captain Courtney said that only a blinding storm would prevent him from taking off on his initial hop of his flight to New York.

Valentia, Ireland, July 19 (A.P.).—Weather unfavorable for a hop-off by Captain F. T. Courtney, British airman, on his projected flight to America, developed today after ten cloudless days. A storm sprang up, rain falling heavily, and a strong southwest wind lashing the harbor.

Captain Courtney was expected to reach here Wednesday.

FINED AND JAILED ON 5 AUTO LAW OFFENCES

John P. Sullivan, 24, of Huron avenue, Cambridge, on a charge of operating under the influence of liquor, was found guilty and given three months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

On the charge of operating after his license was revoked, he was given ten days. For having poor brakes he was fined $25, for possessing no certificate of registration, $10, and for operating without a license he was assessed $5.

U.S. OPENS PROBE OF SCANDAL IN TICKETS FOR DEMPSEY FIGHT

New York, July 19 (I.N.S.).—On order of U. S. Attorney Tuttle, an investigation of the ticket sale for the Dempsey-Sharkey fight was opened today before United States Commissioner Cotter. Two box office treasurers of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, headed by Tex Rickard, were summoned to tell why the public cannot get choice seats. It is charged scalpers are disposing of choice seats for premiums of $10 to $75 and that none of these tickets has been obtainable through the box office.

PACIFIC FLIERS MAY BE HERE FOR LINDY NIGHT

Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger, heroes of the Hawaiian flight, may reach Boston from Washington in time to join Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh of transatlantic flight fame at his reception in the Boston Arena Friday evening. This was intimated in telegrams received from the War Department by Mayor Nichols today.

The Mayor was also brought face to face with the possibility of Colonel Lindbergh reaching Boston a day ahead of his schedule because of the difficulty in finding a proper landing place for his stop in Providence Thursday. Unless the situation is ironed out at the last minute, Lindy will keep on to Boston.

It is now assured that Lindy will remain over to join in the reception to Commander Byrd and the gallant crew of "The America," New York to Paris aviators, who will be the city's guests with Maitland and Hegenberger on Saturday.

Mayor Nichols, besides issuing a proclamation to the children of Boston, inviting them to the Lindy reception on the Common, also requested that there be no airplane flying on Friday afternoon. This does not include the mail planes. The Boston Airport will be roped off to insure a safe landing for "The Spirit of St. Louis."

All members of the Boston police force were ordered on active reserve duty at 8 o'clock Friday because of the record crowds expected. Only those on sick leave or vacations are exempt. Many of the force who bought tickets for the Dempsey-Sharkey fight are worried about getting back on time from New York.

The police at the airport will be aided by 1,000 men from the 26th Di-

TRY TO LINK KALE CASE SUSPECT TO N. H. CRIME

Manchester, N. H., July 19 (A.P.).—The possibility that George Taylor, held at Salem, Mass., for the murder of Stella Kale at Salisbury Beach, may be Eugene Harriman, who served in State's Prison at Concord in 1908 and 1909, was under investigation today.

Roscoe C. Hill, identification expert of the Massachusetts Department of Correction, wired State officials for fingerprints, photograph and record of Harriman.

Manchester police believe Hill is acting under the assumption that Harriman and Taylor are the same person and that he wishes to check up on his data. Harriman went to prison from Sullivan County for assault with intent to kill.

"THERE'S NO AGE LIMIT TO LOVE"

Miss Frances Scott, 23, who will be the bride of the Rev. James Dennison Butts of New Bedford on his 70th birthday next Friday—if the plans of love do not go awry.

New Bedford, July 19.—The true-love romance of James Dennison Butts, shirt-cutting preacher of 69, and Miss Evelyn Frances Scott, 23, Orleans nurse, ran into a $40 debacle today and Miss Scott's expected $40 trousseau was wet with the tears of a five-hour cry.

This was after the romantic May-and-December couple had run into a previous difficulty in the way of a reported attempt by her parents and friends to persuade all New Bedford ministers not to marry them next Friday.

The young-and-old couple arrived at the railroad station today, stating that they were on their way to Boston to purchase Evelyn's trousseau. With them was the minister's daughter, chum of Evelyn, taking the role of chaperone.

Then the bride-to-be forgot her

FULLER'S COMMITTEE COMPLETES INQUIRY AS MEN REFUSE TO EAT

The special investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti case by the Governor's advisory committee practically ended today, leaving only the arguments of counsel to be heard, while at State Prison the two condemned men extended their hunger strike to fifty-seven hours.

The advisory committee spent an hour in conference with Chief Justice Perley Hall of the Superior Court, but refused to explain the nature of their mission.

State Prison officials declared that Warden William Hendry would resort to forcible feeding eventually if Sacco and Vanzetti persist in trying to starve themselves to death.

The two prisoners were examined by the prison physician, Dr. Joseph R. McLaughlin, who reported them in good health. He will examine them daily while their self-imposed ordeal lasts.

Neither coffee nor tea was on the menu for dinner today and Vanzetti could not sip a little nourishment, as has been his custom since the hunger strike began Sunday morning. Warden Hendry explained that at times all the prisoners are given water instead of tea or coffee.

U.S. CONSULATE, NICE, FRANCE, IS BOMBED

Nice, France, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Police are investigating an attempted bombing of the United States Consulate here early today, working on the theory that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers are responsible.

Occupants of apartments in the Consulate building were awakened and the building was shaken severely.

"The chief of police called this morning and offered apologies," U. S. Consul Murphy said.

"The bomb apparently was thrown from the side of the Consulate into the garden. It smashed seven windows in the building and my office is strewn with glass. It was lucky I was not in there."

HEAR YE, CHILDREN! MEET LINDY ON COMMON!

TO the children of Boston: I hope it will be possible for a large number of children to visit Boston Common when Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh receives the welcome of the City of Boston next Friday afternoon at half-past two. The name of Lindbergh stands as a symbol for all that is finest in American worth and his presence in this city should inspire all boys and girls with enthusiasm and courage to meet the great problems of human life.

SACCO AND VANZETTI KEEP UP THEIR HUNGER STRIKE

Sacco and Vanzetti have running water in their cells, but whether they are drinking any of it the prison officials do not know. Sacco has abstained from tea and coffee, as well as solid food, during the strike.

Although the warden has not declared himself on the question of forcible feeding, his subordinates said his attitude on self-starvation by prisoners is naturally the same as on any other form of suicide attempt—something that it is his sworn duty to prevent at all cost.

BREAKFAST IGNORED.

"It is too early to make any plans in that respect," said Warden Hendry, adding that he would have to get medical advice before attempting forced feeding.

A breakfast of meat hash, bread and coffee was ignored by both men, just as were the five previous meals served to them. They likewise refused to touch the noon meal of boiled beef, potatoes and bread.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Dudley P. Ranney of Norfolk County disclosed that the special inquiry into the case, undertaken at the request of the Governor by President Lowell of Harvard, President Stratton of M. I. T. and ex-Judge Robert W. Grant, is virtually ended.

MORE WITNESSES HEARD.

Several witnesses, chiefly for the defense, were heard today. When Ranney emerged from the conference room with Attorney William G. Thompson, counsel for the defense, he said that one or two more might be heard, but that everything was practically completed except arguments of counsel.

"I am ready to argue this minute, but a delay has been asked so that the defense may prepare their arguments carefully," said Ranney. "It may be three or four days before the arguments take place."

At the request of Warden Hendry a patrolman of the Charlestown division will keep watch on the street outside the south wing of the prison in the vicinity of Prison Point bridge, because of the custom of motorists to stop there to look over the wall.

ORDER AUTOISTS AWAY.

Half a dozen automobiles were ordered away at midnight after Warden Hendry telephoned to Station 15 of their presence their.

The hunger strike had no effect on the investigations at the State House which are being conducted independently by the Governor and by his special committee of investigation. Although the strike is in protest against the non-public character of these investigations they continued behind closed doors as in the past.

"Sacco said that both he and Vanzetti will not again try to maintain their lives until the doors of the investigation are thrown wide open and their counsel allowed publicly to cross-examine on the hostile testimony being adduced in the executive chambers," said the Sacco-Vanzetti Defence Committee in a statement.

Among the witnesses who appeared before the investigating committee today was Wilbur F. Turner, photographer, who made photographs for Albert Hamilton, gun expert, of the bullets used in killing the South Braintree paymaster and guard, for whose deaths Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted and sentenced to death.

CALL MORE WITNESSES.

Frank P. Sibley, newspaperman who previously made an affidavit regarding the alleged conduct of Judge Thayer during the trial, was another witness, and a third was D. F. Ahearn of the New Haven Railroad who was called to testify about train movements.

Ahearn was a witness for both government and defense at the trial.

A Vanzetti alibi witness, E. Bastoni of Plymouth, also appeared before the committee.

Anthony J. Salvucci of Brighton, who declared he was an eyewitness of the Bridgewater holdup in which Vanzetti was convicted, was interviewed by the Governor.

"I'm sure Vanzetti was not one of the four men in that hold-up," he said. "I saw them all. I never appeared as a witness before, but I talked with Fred Moore, former counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, a couple of times. I was never called as a witness."

Vanzetti, after his arrest with Sacco for the South Braintree crime, was first tried for the Bridgewater holdup and sentenced to a long term in State Prison.

George U. Crocker, who made an affidavit regarding Judge Thayer's alleged discussing of the case at the Union Club while the murder trial was in progress, was interviewed by Governor Fuller. He previously appeared before the committee.

Hazel Dean 'Tricked' Into Wedding on Lost Dog Hunt

Los Angeles, July 19 (A.P.).—Hazel Dean, motion picture actress, in her suit for annulment of marriage, declared that she would not have married Hugh W. Anderson, Hollywood masseur, if she hadn't lost her dog.

Miss Dean was looking for her dog when Anderson offered to help her find it, but instead of confining search to Hollywood, he drove her to Goldfield, Nev., and induced her to marry him.

The annulment is asked on grounds of fraud. Miss Dean charges Anderson married her to spite his former sweetheart.

vision to keep the crowd from rushing when Lindy hits the ground. Upon landing Lindy will taxi to the hangar of the National Guard, where Mayor Nichols will extend his formal welcome to the city. From there Lindy will be taken in an automobile to Boston Common, where the exercises will be held, with Louis E. Kirstein as the presiding officer.

Colonel Lindbergh will ride in the third car making up the escort with Mayor Nichols and his two sons, Clark and Dexter. The first car will be occupied by Police Commissioner Wilson, William P. Long, chairman of the Park Commission, and Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley.

The second car will have Governor Fuller, honorary chairman of the reception committee. The press will have the fourth and fifth cars, while the City Council, army and navy, federal officials will follow.

10,000 TICKETS.

Among the speakers at the Common and Arena, besides Colonel Lindbergh, will be Governor Fuller, Mayor Nichols, Vice-President Edwin C. Johnson of the Chamber of Commerce, Charles W. N. Williams, clerk of the Juvenile Court. There will also be two clergymen at each meeting. There will be no overflow meetings as was first planned.

Another Arena speaker will be F. Lauriston Bullard, representing the press. Ten thousand tickets for seats in the Arena have been arranged for with 2,000 general admission. The demand for these is great.

A feature of Saturday's celebration and review of the troops from Camp Devens to be witnessed by the visiting aviators, will be the halting of the parade in front of City Hall while Mayor Nichols presents Major-General Edward L. Logan a gold medal in behalf of the city in honor of his 30 years' service in the National Guard.

In making the final plans, the disabled veterans were not forgotten and the escort will be halted long enough at Chelsea Naval Hospital, on the route to Boston, for Colonel Lindbergh to speak to them. The veterans will be massed there from the city's four veterans' hospitals.

Arrangements have also been made to exhibit "The Spirit of St. Louis," Lindy's plane, at the Airport, but at a safe distance so that the machine will not be damaged.

Catches Child Unhurt After 30-Foot Fall From Roof

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (I.N.S.).—Aileen Donohue, three, was saved from almost certain death today by Thomas Bradner, twenty-eight, who caught the child in his arms when she dropped from the cornice of her home thirty feet above the ground.

Aileen climbed out of the window onto the cornice and then over the edge. Unable to find a footing she clung by her hands. Bradner waited until she let go. She was unhurt.

FLIERS SHARE IN 'M'GRAW DAY'

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—A day virtually free of official ceremonies greeted the five returned transatlantic fliers today after their enthusiastic welcome home.

A baseball game in the afternoon, at which ceremonies were arranged in honor of the 25th anniversary of John J. McGraw's management of the New York Giants, and a municipal dinner at the Hotel Commodore tonight comprised their official program.

Meanwhile, Commander Richard E. Byrd and his crew of the America, are already looking forward to their next great adventure—a flight to the South Pole—while Clarence D. Chamberlin, pilot of the Columbia, is anxious to perfect plans for a transatlantic flying service.

Byrd considers his South Pole flight as another "great air battle," an undertaking of such magnitude that it will claim all of his time and attention.

"And I hope it will be a conquest in every sense of the word," he said.

He will be accompanied on the new adventure by the three who flew with him to France and Floyd Bennett, pilot on his North Pole flight.

The South Pole flight is expected to take three years. Most of this time will be devoted to preparations The plane to be used is now nearing completion.

RESCUE TUGS SENT OUT ON WILD GOOSE CHASE

A telephoned report to the Boston Towboat Company today that a freighter was ashore off Winthrop Head in a fog, sent two tugs racing down the harbor on a wildgoose chase.

The tugs, Palais and Neptune arrived in the lower harbor only to find that the collier Lake Farber, bound from Norfolk to Mystic Wharf with coal, had scraped the bank at the edge of Broad Sound Chanel and had been forced to reverse to get clear. The collier was lying at anchor off Finn's Ledge when the rescue craft steamed into view.

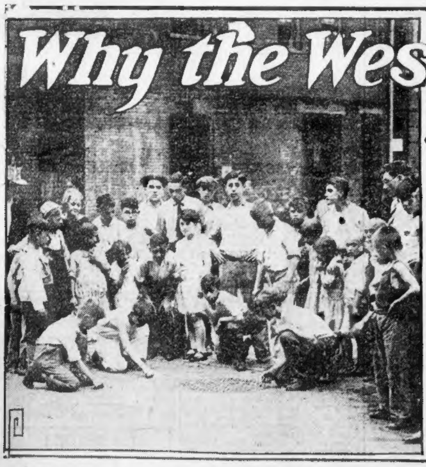
Why the West End pleads for a playground



'MILLIONS FOR EVERYTHING; NOT A CENT FOR US'

LOWELL DRIVER HAD EXCUSE FOR SPEED

The heart of Judge Arthur P. Stone is not as his name, and because justice in the Third District Court at East Cambridge is tempered with mercy and understanding Claude Le Brun of Lowell stands as perhaps the first man on record to receive a cash rebate from the clerk.

Le Brun, twenty, of Ennell street pleaded guilty to speeding thirty-five to forty miles an hour in Arlington. His case was filed on first offense and he was charged $5 for costs.

Then he spoke to Patrolman Daniel P. Barry, prosecuting officer, of Lowell, who hastened to the bench and told Judge Stone Le Brun had showed a letter from Traffic Officer Lynch to the effect that Le Brun's sister truly had died in Lowell and that Le Brun had been hastening to her side before the black shadows should close down.

Le Brun, allowed to proceed by the Arlington officer after being stopped July 6, had promised to obtain a letter, corroborating his story, from a Lowell officer. He got the letter, but in his grief had forgotten to mail it to Barry.

Judge Stone, in ordering the $5 costs remitted, commended the youth for manfully owning up to his transgression, even though the speed might have been excusable under the circumstances.

HIKE IS HALTED ON FIRST 10 MILES OUT

Heat and the hills took heavy toll of the 26th Division today on the first leg of their four-day hike from Camp Devens to Boston.

Less than five miles of the first day's tramp of nine had been covered when the khaki-clad forms began dropping in exhaustion and the ambulances were busy removing the casualties.

Although the day was cloudy in Boston, the sun beat down mercilessly in the Ayer terrain.

A halt was made at the four-mile mark and another was planned at the end of the second four miles. Because of the dropping figures, it was necessary to halt at the end of three miles.

Then the hike was resumed to Littleton, where camp over tonight will be made. The division will arrive in Boston on Saturday to take part in the Lindberg parade. Its start from Devens was made at 8:15 a. m.

Within two hours of the first assembly call for the departure, the last khaki-clad man of the division—with the exception of retiring Major-General Edward L. Logan—was swinging off the sun-baked plains into the Harvard road.

General Logan went back to commanding headquarters to pay a farewell call on Colonel William K. Naylor, camp commandant.

BISHOP WARNS A. O. H. TO 'LET ERIN AID SELF'

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (A.P.)—Delegates to the annual national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which opened here today, were admonished by Rt. Rev. William Turner, Catholic Bishop of Buffalo, in his address of welcome, not to venture "into the delicate questions of internal politics in Ireland."

Reminding the convention that the chief mission of the order is to promote the ideals which are a part of the religion and culture of the Irish race, Bishop Turner declared, "Leave Ireland to work out her own destiny in this critical time."

"I have my opinions and you have yours," he said, "some of them directly opposed to mine. Let our business, then, be with our own Hibernianism here in America.

"Let our efforts be directed to make it stronger, to make its ideals better known, to make its membership more numerous, to make its influence more widely felt, to take means to defend it against its enemies and caluminators, to make its principles better understood and its educational work more effective."

Ireland, however, should never be out of the thoughts of the Hibernians in this country, Bishop Turner added, but he believed that closer attention to the ideals of the Irish in America would do more to promote good will than to interfere in Ireland's affairs.

SOLDIER IS HELD IN ATTACK ON GIRL AT AYER

Camp Devens, Ayer, July 19 (A.P.).—A young woman, who gave the name of Pearl Agurkan of West Lynn, stumbled out of the woods into a roadway at Camp Devens today, called for water and collapsed.

She was taken to the station hospital and after recovering consciousness told Major James A. Stevens, executive officer, that she had been attacked by a soldier.

There was a severe cut over her right eye, both eyes were blackened, her throat was black and blue and her fingers were bruised. Her clothing was torn.

After she had told her story, James Farnsworth, a private in Company K, 13th Infantry, was arrected and placed in the camp guard house pending an investigation. He denied having attacked the woman.

She said she came here last night to attend an enlisted men's dance. She refused to say what occurred during the evening, but said that after daylight this morning the soldier attacked her while she was in the woods, choked her and carried her into an unoccupied building, then went away.

Hospital physicians expressed the belief that she had either been hit over the head or had hurt her head in falling.

EDISON USES BEDS NOW AND GETS MORE SLEEP

Los Angeles, July 19 (A.P.).—Thomas A. Edison is getting a little more sleep these days, according to his son, Charles Edison, who is visiting here.

"Dad is sleeping longer than he used to," the son said when asked about his father's reputation of living on four hours sleep a day.

"When he was concentrating on a problem in the old days he used to sleep four or five hours, much of it in a chair in the laboratory. He has developed the faculty of falling into a sound slumber instantly no matter where or what position he is in. That is why he gets perfect rest. He can lie down on a table and drop to sleep and wake up in 15 minutes, feeling like a new man.

But Edison goes in for beds a lot more than he formerly did, even when there are vacant table tops around, his son revealed.

HERE IS A CHANCE FOR TWO MOTORCYCLISTS

The Boston Evening American wants to hire the services of two motorcycles, each with side car and driver. Motorcycle owners should apply at once to the City Editor of the Boston Evening American on the third floor of the New England Press Building, No. 5 Winthrop square.

DELEGATES AT GENEVA 'MORE OPTIMISTIC'

Geneva, July 19 (A.P.).—A mild sensation was created here today by announcement that Earl Cecil, member of the British delegation to the tripartite naval conferece, will return to London tonight and W. C. Bridgeman, head of the British delegation, will go tomorrow to consult with the British Cabinet and elucidate the British position at the conference.

Geneva, July 19 (A.P.).—"We are more optimistic now than we have been for some days," Hugh S. Gibson, chief American delegate to the Tripartite Naval Conference, declared after a conference today between the six principal delegates.

"The discussions are continuing in a most cheerful and friendly atmosphere," added Mr. Gibson. "We are beginning to see some light ahead."

The question of defining the obsoleteness of cruisers—determining what ships shal be counted as active units and included in the total tonnage limitation of surface craft—appears to have formed the subject of today's discussion.

Reply to a question as to whether agreement was in sight on the number of 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns to which each of the three powers would be entitled, Mr. Gibson said that that problem had not yet come officially before the confrerees and that it would be some time before it was reached.

One indication that there was some progress to report was the decision of the American delegation to receive representatives of the World Press this afternoon, these meetings having been suspended several days ago.

the 104th Infantry because of the reappointment of Colonel Paul J. Norton of Springfield to active duty, the work of breaking camp by that outfit went on apace and with all the snap and precision made more efficient by the training period in camp.

Colonel Norton said that no friction existed.

"My appointment was made by the Governor. I was withdrawn from the reserve and put in active service by the Governor. How long I will remain in service I don't know, but I expect to march back to Boston and be present during the reception to the aviator."

The troops are covering the hike in three columns. The first, under command of General Foote, includes the 101st and 182d Infantry, part of the 101st Field Artillery, one battalion of 101st Engineers, 102d Motor Transport company.

The second column, under Major Choate, includes the forward echelon of division headquarters, the 26th Division special troops and most of the 26th Division train.

The third column, under Brigadier-General Foley, includes the 104th and 181st Infantry, the 101st Engineers, less one battalion, the 101st Motor Transport company, one platoon 101st Collection company and a battalion of the 101st Ambulance company.

All three columns are expected to camp in Concord tomorrow night. Thursday night the schedule calls for camping on the State reservation in Waltham, while on Friday night they will sleep near Boston.

THIEF GETS $40 BRIDAL CASH

handbag in the station in her rush for the train.

They were just boarding the coach when a girl employe of the station rushed out with the bag, saying a woman had handed it to her.

Evelyn looked in the bag and then let out a wail. Where there had been two $20 bills before, there was not even one now.

The train was given up and the solicitous Butts led his young and weeping fiancee back to the waiting room, where he sat her on a bench and endeavored to stop the copious flow.

A reporter broke in upon the sobs long enough to ask if the $40 was intended for the trousseau and received a testy answer from Butts.

On the far end of the bench, Butts' daughter sat, viewing a bit coldly the efforts of her father to comfort his intended bride.

TO WED FRIDAY.

Four hours passed and the couple still sat in the waiting room, attempting to console each other.

Butts and Evelyn have announced their intention of being married Friday because it is the seventieth birthday of the preacher, who is a licensed, but not ordained minister.

For years the elderly preacher has been a member of the Howard Methodist Episcopal Church and is also a member of the Southern New England Conference.

He acts as "supply pastor" in various pulpits.

Herrick Is Better

Autos in Washington Being Run Down by Pedestrians

Washington, July 19 (A.P.)—Pedestrians of the capital are trying, in increasing numbers to run down automobiles, if figures tabulated by the traffic bureau are to be taken as accurate.

The bureau has found 5 per cent. of the automobile casualties here are caused by persons walking into the sides of moving motor vehicles.

Harrimans Divorced in Paris

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Oliver Carley Harriman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, has been divorced by Mrs. Grace Hewitt Harriman in Paris, according to word today to Harriman's New York attorney. They were married in 1924.

7 HURT AS AUTO HITS POLE

Others injured are Mrs. Agnes Compton, mother, and George Compton, fourteen, brother of Evelyn Compton.

All the injured were taken to Norwalk Hospital, where they were found suffering from cuts, bruises and other minor injuries. Miss Evelyn Compton was unconscious and was the first taken to the hospital. Little hope is held there for her recovery. Physicians believe the others will be able to leave the hospital today.

The machine was said by police to have been on its way to Yonkers.

Pending arraignment, the police said Kelly told them he was driving at the rate of 30 to 35 miles an hour. At the time he was adjusting a light on the instrument board and was not watching the road. At a curve before he could turn the steering wheel, the car shot down an embankment and crashed into the pole.

Other autoists notified police and physicians.

Jap-German Treaty

Tokyo, July 19 (I.N.S.).—The Japanese-German commercial treaty, giving Germany preferred trade rights, will be signed formally at the Foreign Office tomorrow, it was reported today. The treaty will annul the prohibitory dyestuffs restrictions which grew out of the World War.

PINEDO TO AID BERTAUD

Rome, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Premier Mussolini announced today the appointment of Commander Francesco De Pinedo as head of the Italian committee to co-operate with Lloyd Bertaud in his proposed New York to Rome flight.

Commander De Pinedo and his committee will give what aid they can to the American flier, prior to his hop-off, and will also arrange for his reception here.

Appointment of Commander De Pinedo, Italy's famous ace and noted long distance flier, to head the committee is regarded here as a tribute to the American aviator.

Bertaud's flight is under the auspices of William Randolph Hearst.

De Pinedo recently made a hop across the Atlantic from Newfoundland, but was forced down off the Azores. He will be able to give Bertaud and his companion, Hill, the benefit of his experiences in flying over the Atlantic and in other long ocean hops.

ARMOUR IS SICK IN LONDON

London, July 19 (A.P.)—J. Ogden Armour, 64, who has been seriously ill at the Carlton Hotel, was believed today to have passed the critical stage and to be on the mend.

He was still too weak, however, to see anyone but his wife. It is understood that his daughter and her husband, advised of his illness, are on their way to England.

Mr. Armour has been attended by Lord Dawson, physician to the King.

YOUNG NAMED HEAD OF STATE PROBATION BOARD

Chief Justice Hall of the Superior Court has appointed Benjamin Loring Young, formerly Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, as a member of the Massachusetts Commission on Probation for the term of five years to take the place of Allison G. FORD PAID CASH, SAYS SAPIRO

Chicago, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Aaron Sapiro said today he had received a "substantial amount" from Henry Ford in settlement out of court of his suit for $1,000,000.

Sapiro received Ford's check simultaneously with the formal ending of the action in Detroit Federal Court. Sapiro would not disclose the amount of the check, but one report set the figures at $140,000.

"I will not state what Mr. Ford paid me," Sapiro said. "Of course, it was a substantial amount. I want it understood, however, this check represents part of the costs and all of the attorneys' fees incident to the suit.

"I was completely satisfied with Mr. Ford's retraction and neither asked nor received pecuniary damages."

ARGUE OVER FIGURES AT GAS RATE HEARING

A tilt over three sets of figures submitted by the Haverhill Gas Light Co., in three different hearings, featured today the continued hearing at the State House on the petition of Amesbury selectmen for reduction in gas rates.

The tilt came between Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the Public Utilities Commission and Professor Frank L. Simpson of Boston University, who claimed a new set of figures was necessary to clear up doubt over the first three sets.

GRAPPLERS TAKE BODY OF GARDNER BOY FROM POND

Gardner, July 19 (A.P.)—The body of Edward Pultorak, eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mateur Pultorak, was taken by grappling irons this morning from Daniel's Pond. The boy was last seen alive at 8:30 o'clock last night by three companions who were said to have left him paddling on a board in the pond twelve feet from shore. A baby was born in the Pultorak household yesterday.

INSPECT SAND BLAST ON STATE HOUSE FRONT

Inspection of the sand-blasted section of the State House's Bulfinch front was made today at Governor Fuller's request, by Charles R. Greco, chairman, and H. Dudley Murphy and Cyrus E. Dallin, members of the State Art Commission. Their view was to determine whether it would be advisable to sand-blast all the white paint off the historic front.

Classmate Holds Last Rites for Col. Gaston

Col. William A. Gaston, banker, lawyer, statesman and philanthropist, was laid to rest today in the family lot at Forest Hills Cemetery.

The services were private, held in the chapel with only members of the immediate family, close friends and business associates present.

In accordance with the request of Colonel Gaston there was no singing, the impressive burial service of the Episcopal Church being read by Rev. Sherrard Billings, head master at Groton School, and a classmate of the deceased at Harvard. Dr. Billings also read a verse entitled "A Man's Prayer," of which he said Colonel Gaston had been fond, and a copy of which he constantly carried.

Francis W. Snow, organist of Trinity Church, improvised on the organ before and after the service and during an interval rendered the "Pilgrims' Chorus" from Tannhauser.

The law firm of Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt, of which Col. Gaston was the head, was closed, and all the members attended the funeral. They were Frederick E. Snow, Thomas Hunt, L. A. Ford, J. C. Rice, Henry Endicott, Warren Motley, Leverett Saltonstall, G. W. Matthews, Merrill Griswald, R. H. Holt, W. T. Snow, and John K. Howard.

Among other friends and associates of Colonel Gaston who were present were T. J. Falvey, Massachusetts Bonding & Assurance Company; Sidney Shuman, Boston; William A. Burnham, Brookline; Thornton H. Simmons, Boston; Mrs. John S. Curtis, Beverly Farms; Mrs. R. P. Snelling, Beverly Farms; Mrs. P. L. Saltonstall, Dedham; M. J. Curran, Andover; R. E. Townsend, Boston; Louis K. Liggett, Brookline; J. Weston Allen, former Attorney-General; B. J. Rothwell, Boston; Charles Francis Adams, Boston; William Hooper, Manchester; J. B. Russell, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Snow, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Snow, Boston, and Mrs. C. G. Weld, North Haven.

The casket was banked with flowers, many of the floral pieces having been sent by Boston bankers, with whom Colonel Gaston was associated for many years.

BOMBED U. S. CONSULATE

The consulate had been under police guard at night for two weeks because Consul Murphy expected an attack.

"I am convinced a sympathizer with Sacco and Vanzetti threw the bomb," Consul Murphy said. "I have been suspicious because several times during the last two weeks, late at night, somebody rang the bell and when I'd open the door no one would be there."

Colonel Bootes, U. S. M. C., retired, who lives on the ground floor of the Consulate building with his wife and daughter, had a narrow escape.

HUB AIRPORT UNSUITABLE FOR BYRD

AREA WAS TOO LIMITED FOR HIS OCEAN HOP-OFF

Commander Richard E. Byrd found Boston airport unsuitable for his transatlantic hop-off, and Lieutenant Albert Hegenberger, South Boston aviator who made the first Pacific flight to Hawaii, dreaded landing at the local field, according to Theodore E. Hedlund, military reserve aviator and well-known young Boston insurance broker, who today joined the chorus for a bigger and busier airport.

By THEODORE E. HEDLUND,
First President of the Aero Club of Massachusetts.

A night landing at Boston airport would be well nigh disastrous under present conditions. If Boston is to be a port of call and a hailing point for commercial aviation, proper runways and additional equipment should be installed at once.

T. E. Hedlund

Two Boston airmen, whose names have become famous throughout the civilized world, have told me what they think of Boston airport and its needs, and they will probably have more to say about it when they are entertained as guests of Boston this week.

Commander Byrd, first to fly over the North Pole and hero of the remarkable flight from New York to France through dense fog, told me he was dismayed by the failure adequately to equip Boston airport.

When chided for not having chosen Boston—his home city—for his recent hop-off Commander Byrd said the runways were too limited and the hangars improperly situated to permit a take-off with a trans-Atlantic load.

Lieutenant Albert Hegenberger of South Boston, one of the two army fliers who made the first flight to Hawaii, voiced similar sentiments to me on one of his trips home to Boston by air. He had flown from the Middle West through clouds and storms and said that one of his chief concerns was thought of landing at Boston airport, because of conditions.

But both fliers praised Boston for the excellent start made in establishing an airport. They thought the good work should be kept up. The location of Boston airport is ideal, but more space is needed. Whatever investment is made in developing the local airport will be returned to city and State threefold.

Commercial aviation, in order to be successful, demands facilities for night as well as day landings and take-offs. Boston airport is at present too restricted for night flying. There is ample room if use is made of it in the way of added filling and grading and removing hangars from what should be the center of the field. Radio and lighting equipment should be installed, especially the latter, without delay.

Air travel will be available for the public almost overnight and the time to prepare is this year. It cost in the vicinity of $200 to $300 for a trip to New York by air five or six years ago. Today the transportation fee on one line is $35.

In another year or two the fare will be on a par with first class Pullman railroad travel.

Passenger-carrying planes are being built in more than one factory throughout America. They are not of the early two-seater types. As a start, they will accommodate 12 to 15 passengers and have a speed of better than 100 miles per hour. What will be produced next year is a matter of speculation.

Boston will be regarded as a mere outlying point on the air map of the country until such time as authorities and public-spirited business men decide to welcome commercial air transportation and provide facilities just as they have docks for marine craft.

One youngster proved that New York is but an hour from Boston. He hopped off in an army plane and made the flight both ways in approximately two hours. His time between the two cities on one way was less than an hour.

It is nothing unusual for airmen to make the trip in an hour and a half. A Boston business man would not have to shut shop before 5 p. m. to keep an evening engagement in New York if he availed himself of air transportation now in the making. And he would have little excuse not to be found at his desk by 9 a. m. the following morning even though he had breakfasted in the neighboring metropolis.

GEORGE ARLISS TO MAKE FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—There was talk, when George Arliss was in Hollywood with his old English company, that he had signed a motion picture contract. Mr. Arliss, however, is always reticent, usually so, even for an Englishman, and no one was able to get a word out of him.

I am told now that he is coming back this Fall to play the role of the minister in "The Darling of the Gods," David Belasco's play.

This little piece of news means that Mr. Arliss will appear in Norma Talmadge's next picture.

Norma, who is still in Paris, will return with her mother and Constance in the Fall. "The Darling of the Gods" will go into production immediately following "A Woman Disputed," with Rowland V. Lee directing.

I DON'T know whether it is true or not that Charlie Murray has been slated to play the role of Jiggs in "Bringing Up Father," but he certainly sounds like a promising candidate.

There is a rumor current in Hollywood, and perhaps I had better explain not verified, that Mr. Murray will do the male honors in this Cosmopolitan production with Polly Moran as Maggie.

JAMES MURRAY'S lucky star must have been working over time for him the day King Vidor chose him to play the male lead in "The Crowd."

Now, John Stahl has selected the youthful player for the leading role in "In Old Kentucky."

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Mrs. William Endicott After Winning at Agawam Seeks New Tennis Laurels

MISS HARRIET ROYCE

THESE INDEFATIGABLE TENNIS PLAYERS! Mrs. William Endicott, for example. No sooner had this bronze-haired young matron won through at Agawam with Mrs. Corbiere than they depart for other fields to conquer. Now they are at Maidstone, seeking further tennis honors. And it is on Mrs. Endicott's slender shoulders that rests the major task of arranging for next week's tournament at Essex County. She'll be back here in a few days, at most, to see that all is in order for the North Shore classic. Meanwhile, Harvey Bundy is in charge.

AND THE ESSEX TOURNAMENT IS A CLASSIC —from several viewpoints. Not only will every local star be on hand, but Miss Helen Wills and Mrs. Molla Mallory have promised to come over. And that is only another way of saying that the smart Essex Courts will be the very center of the tennis world for the time being. Everything will focus on the inimitable Helen. And femininely speaking this fair Californian will draw every eye. For she comes back to her native shores possessed of a wardrobe that for sophistication and chic is the Rue de la Paix itself.

TRUST PARIS TO DO ITS UTMOST FOR THIS invincible from out of the West. The Wills tennis frock, sleeveless and of crisp white, is already the accepted feminine tennis mode from shore to shore. Now she comes with trunksful of frocks and hats trim and trig, pour le sport, and ravishing evening gowns wherewith to bedazzle. A brilliant round is in store for Miss Wills, but announcement of all this of course waits on the return of Mrs. Endicott from Maidstone. So also does announcement of local players who have accepted.

I'M TOLD THAT MISS ISAbella Mumford is an entrant. And in all probability the Palfrey quartet will further distinguish themselves. Miss Harriet Royce, who followed up her Agawam appearance with a visit down in Maryland, will be back at her Dedham home in a day or so should she decide to play at the Essex.

CAREFREE CUPID IS BUSY with his barbed darts these days. I've heard of no less than two romantic announcements just-about-to-be-made. And one antedates the wedding itself only by about two months. Time was when betrothals made pleasant news mainly in the Bride-and-Roses month, a sort of accompaniment to the peal of wedding bells. Now they are scattered over the entire social calendar with June fast losing its atmosphere Hymeneal. Both fiancees in the forthcoming announcements are girls whose social advent goes back two or three years.

ST. ANDREWS AGAIN CLAIMS Mr. and Mrs. Robert Treat Paine of Boston and Waltham for a stay of two months or so. They are domiciled at the Algonquin as is their usual custom, after an interval at "Stonehurst" in Waltham. Quite early in the Spring the shutters go up on the Arlington street establishment as the Paines commence their migrations. Mrs. Paine's smart frocks and Mrs. Paine's jewels always create something of a sensation even at the Algonquin, where handsome matrons from many a metropolitan set make it a point to don most fetching attire.

Beats Tea - - -

In Filmore Flaggen's office, they break off work for a few minutes every afternoon for a "Dutch treat" meeting of the Chelmsford Society.

A few of the big Chelmsford bottles go clear around and every member of the force feels the better for it.

"They do much better work, because of that little nip of Chelmsford," says Filmore plaintively — as though he encourages it from any other cause than his big heart!

Here's what the office force says:

(1) The General Manager—

I'm for Chelmsford because it's a real ginger ale. It's been made and advertised for years and there's real fruit juice in it. All the force like it because they use it at home.

(2) The Treasurer—

I insist on Chelmsford because the value is all in the ginger ale. You can get the Pale Dry anywhere in big 4-glass bottles for only 25 cents.

(3) Tillie the typist—

Pounding a machine is hot work and Chelmsford keeps you cool and full of pep. When I'm out on a party I always order Chelmsford because the best places serve it and I don't go to the other kind.

THE BIDDING

1NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Final Bid 1 N.T. Played by South.

Trick 1. With the exceptional support held by Dummy, there is a Small Slam laid down, four Clubs, four Diamonds, three Hearts and a Spade. If the outstanding Hearts are divided equally between the adversaries, a Grand Slam will be made. If, however, they are not so divided or the Jack does not fall on the third round, it would appear that a Spade trick must be lost, as there is no finesse in the suit. Declarer must plan to play so as to avoid the loss of a Spade trick even if the Hearts do not break. The only possible adverse holding that will enable him to make a Grand Slam under this condition is that of the King of Spades is in the same hand that holds the Jack and three or more other Hearts, in which case the player holding such combination may be squeezed.

Tricks 7 to 12. The Spade Ace must be played before the last round of Clubs, so that Declarer will be in his own hand at Trick 12. East must discard the Spade King on Trick 11 to retain protection in Hearts, trusting that his partner may hold the Queen of Spades.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

ELKS' RULER'S MOTHER DEAD

Springfield, July 19.—Mrs. Mary A. Malley, mother of John F. Malley, elected exalted ruler of the Elks at the Cincinnati convention last week, died at her home, No. 227 Forest Park avenue, here today after a long illness.

Born in New Haven, she taught school in that city in her early life and after marriage moved to Springfield, where she resided 52 years. Her husband, James, died in 1895.

Mrs. Malley leaves two sons, John F. of Boston and Thomas C. of Springfield, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry J. Forbes of White Plains, N. Y. The funeral will be from her home at 9:45 a. m., Thursday, with a requiem mass at the Church of the Holy Name at 10 o'clock.

Good jobs do not walk the streets—they are listed in the Classified Columns of the Boston American. See Help Wanted, Classifications 56 and 53.

Wind Insurance Now Asked by Banks on Property Loans

Springfield, Mass., July 19 (A.P.).—Storms of the last year that have been accompanied by destructive winds have resulted in action by local banks requiring owners of mortgaged property to provide wind insurance.

This was brought to light today by the action of one bank in requiring not only takers of new loans, but holders of old ones, to meet this condition.

WOMAN'S LEG BROKEN AS MOTORCYCLE SKIDS

Miss Helen Bunn, 22, of East Boston, suffered a fractured leg and possible internal injuries today when a motorcycle skidded in Broadway, Revere. The girl was riding on the second seat of the cycle, operated by Joseph H. Tuberaso of Chelsea street, East Boston. He escaped injury.

2 SNOOPERS GUILTY OF PERJURY

Volunteer Dry Sleuths Are Trapped While Getting "Evidence" in Capital

Washington, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Two "informers" for an organization of Washington churchmen, who have united voluntarily to assist police in drying up the capital, pleaded guilty to perjury today and were held in $5,000 bond for action of the grand jury.

They are Charles D. Davis and Jesse W. Hall. They are charged with having sworn falsely to a liquor warrant.

The men had been working under the auspices of the "Citizens' Service Association" and were paid $2.50 each for making "buys" and turning the evidence over to police.

Davis told the court he had at one time been connected with the Massachusetts prohibition unit, with headquarters in Boston.

Harry M. Douthitt, field secretary of the association, "pointed with prde" recently to the asssistance his workers were giving to the police, citing Davis' record particularly. This is said to have prompted police suspicions, and an investigation followed.

According to the police, Davis was asked to go to the home of an active member of the force and try to "make him buy." The volunteer dry agent returned with a pint of corn whiskey which, according to the charges, he swore he had purchased from one "Dan Mills."

Two other patrolmen had been stationed in their brother officer's house to see if Davis appeared at the address, and they swore they never saw him. The arrests for perjury followed.

HEAT BACKBONE IS BROKEN; COOL TONIGHT

The heat wave, the longest since 1912, was broken today when the wind shifted into the northwest and sent the humidity tumbling back to normal, with further relief predicted in the shape of thunderstorms tonight.

The official forecast reads:

Partly cloudy, probably with thunderstorms this afternoon or tonight; slightly cooler tonight; Wednesday fair; gentle shifting winds, becoming northerly.

The present hot wave has been exceeded only twice in duration and intensity, in the recent history of the local weather bureau. In 1911, beginning July 2, there were 11 hot days in a row, with a maximum of 104 above on July 4 and an average maximum for the entire period of 95.3 degrees.

DIVORCE HERS; DADDY GETS SON

Mrs. Edna Bentley is freed from John M. Bentley, former Tufts football star, but Judge Harris in Middlesex Probate Court awarded the gridiron plunger custody of John M., Jr., after medical testimony that the child became greatly emaciated while in her care.

TRUCK CRASHES INTO STORE

The Eagle Public Market at No. 158 Washington street, Somerville, became even more public than planned today when a five-ton auto truck slipped its brake and zoomed down Allston street, across crowded Washington street and crashed into the market.

When it came to rest, the truck was against the meat block, but there was a bigger traffic block outside when the crowd gathered.

Mrs. Antonio Di Ciaccio, wife of the market proprietor, was shocked by fright at the crash of the truck into the market window, and a customer who had just left the store reached the sidewalk just in time to witness the end of the roll.

William O. Wright of Harrison street, Medford, was eatng his lunch in a restaurant when his truck started to roll.

JUDGE SWIG IN REALTY FIGHT

Judge Louis Swig of Taunton, son of Simon Swig, former head of the defunct Tremont Trust Company, was one of the principals today in a quarrel over a real estate development in Miami which led to court, where warrants were sworn out.

The question at issue, according to participants in the quarrel, was who is the rightful receiver of the Fulford-by-the-Sea development. Following heated argument behind closed doors, the litigants paraded to court.

A. L. Yarborough, real estate operator, swore out warrants charging W. E. Burwell, president of the Chamber of Commerce, with disorderly conduct, and Fred Vanderpool, an attorney, with assault and battery. Vanderpool countered with disorderly conduct charges against Yarborough and Swig.

CATHOLICS TO ACT IN 22 PARISHES

Aim to Stop Contributions in Battle With Bishop of Providence

Woonsocket, R. I., July 19 (A.P.)—Leaders of the movement in Rhode Island which has resulted in the bringing of suits in equity against the Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese of Providence and trustees of 12 parishes will attempt next Sunday to put into effect a plan whereby all contributions toward the maintenance of the churches where Franco-American Catholics worship will be stopped, according to announcement made here today by Elphege J. Daignault, leader of the movement.

Plans for the stopping of contributions were perfected at a meeting in this city last night attended by 1,000 persons, said to have represented all of the Franco-American parishes in Rhode Island.

It was said today by Mr. Daignault that the plan would affect at least twenty-two parishes in the diocese of Providence, and that Franco-Americans would not only refuse to make the customary contribution in lieu of pew rent, but would also refuse to give to the offertory collection, maintaining this policy until such time as Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey alters certain policies to which Franco-Americans of the diocese are said to object.

The suits in equity, which were filed some time ago in Superior Court, and which are to come up for hearing early in the Fall, are based on the claim that parochial funds were diverted, upon order of the bishop, to a fund which was raised for the construction of Catholic diocesan high schools, the petitioners maintaining that the funds were taken without their consent.

PREACH SERMONS EARLY TO KEEP PEOPLE AWAKE

"Preach your sermons during the Summer months at the beginning of the service immediately following the scripture reading, if you want people to keep awake in church, while the heat is turned on," was the advice given the ministers by Professor Woodman Bradbury of the Newton Theological Institution in his talk today, before the Summer school.

Rum-Runner Caught

St. Albans, Vt., July 19 (A.P.)—Judson Williams of Schenectady, N. Y., was arrested near Berkshire by border patrolmen who chased him from the border at Morse's Line, when Williams' car was ditched in making a curve. Four hundred and eighty quarts of ale were seized.

Story of Love and Intrigue; A Girl Who Kept Her Head and a Tiger Woman

Eddie Wisden, a handsome weakling, believes he is going to marry Lady Meldreth, a rich and socially powerful woman who is estranged from her husband. He indulges his credit to the limit, becoming deeply enmeshed in debt. Jill, his actress dancer half-sister, encounters all sorts of financial difficulties but remains true to her ideals. Under dramatic circumstances Jill meets Lord Meldreth, who greatly admires her principles and her courage. His generosity makes possible her return journey to London from a distant suburb, where her show had been stranded. She harbors new dreams of happiness in the friendship of his Lordship, but these are soon dispelled. Gladys, Jill's best friend, elopes with a Mr. Watson whom she expects to marry at once.

Jill makes great progress in the antiques shop and at last meets Lord Meldreth there.

Meldreth invites Jill to the theatre, to witness the performance of Odette, a famous dancer and friend of his. At dinner Meldreth tells Jill he wants his wife to divorce him.

CHAPTER 30.

MELDRETH had made a lunch appointment with Jill the same day. He was a few minutes late, because after his visit to Edna he had been to see his solicitors and they had delayed him; but she greeted him with a radiant smile, since, above all things, she was glad to see him and was far too reasonable to feel annoyed because he had not been able to hit off the time to the second.

"It doesn't matter a bit," she answered when he apologized. "I've only been here five minutes and I guessed you were kept and could not help it. Where are we going? I liked Boulay's last night. Can't we lunch there?"

Meldreth hesitated. There was nothing care-free about him today. He looked serious, grim, and rather in a temper.

"Look here, Jill, I want to have a talk with you—alone," he said. "We can't get out of town in time for you to come back to the shop, or I'd suggest a run out into the country. Do you mind if we lunch by ourselves? We can have a private room at Boulay's if you've no objection."

Jill shook her head.

"Of course I don't mind. It'll

The Count of Monte Cristo ~ By Alexandre Dumas

Monte Cristo now pursued his revenge against Fernand. He knew Fernand had won his wealth by betraying Ali Pasha, a Greek ruler, and he denounced him. Fernand appeared for trial in the House of Peers and Haidee, the daughter of Ali Pasha and Monte Cristo's ward, was a witness against him.

Fernand was convicted of felony and treason. His son, Albert, challenged Monte Cristo to a duel, thinking he had manufactured the evidence. Mercedes, the young man's mother, knew Monte Cristo was a marvelous marksman and she begged him in the name of their old love to spare her son's life.

Monte Cristo promised to spare Albert. Mercedes, who had just learned of her husband's guilt, told Albert the full story. At that, the youth apologized to Monte Cristo on the dueling field. Then he and his mother left Fernand's house together. Fernand killed himself.

Monte Cristo next pursued his revenge against Danglars, who was wealthy. He introduced a mysterious young Count Audrea Cavalcanti into the Danglars household. Danglars was pleased with the young man and arranged a betrothal between him and his daughter, Eugenie.

STATE FILM IS FILLED WITH LAUGHS

The Irish have a field day this week at Loew's State, where "The Callahans and the Murphys" wage a battle royal across the screen. Marie Dressler is the chief Callahan, Polly Moran plays the head of the Murphy clan, and these two provide most of the rough and tough entertainment.

Marie Dressler

Drinking beer by the barrel, tearing each other's hair out, indulging in conversation that would delight a good lip reader, they make the film so funny that the audience is weak with laughter.

There is an incidental story, written by Kathleen Norris, but no one bothers much about it. The comic quarrels of the Callahans and the Murphys are the matter of the moment, and they are funnier than any of the racial films so far.

The humor is lusty and loud-voiced, the principals go after one another with fists and heels. In any other films, this might become more boresome than bolsterous, but Miss Dressler and Miss Moran are excellent actresses. If they make faces, they are funny faces; if they fall down, they fall like Charlie Chaplin magnified sixteen times. And the most hilarious thing of all is a peaceful Irish picnic, with every man and woman on the warpath and the survivors being hauled off in ambulances. Sally O'Neil is pert and piquant as the film's heroine, and plenty of other good actors are in the cast.

Phil Spitalny and his boys have two stage specialties this week. "Floods of Spring" is one, and for contrast, the other supplies bells, sirens and shrieks in "The Midnight Alarm." Nora Hoffman, a soprano, sings, and shorter films round out the bill.

Heroine of Sea

PAULINE STARKE

Talented Cosmopolitan player, now sailing rough waters in the stirring photodrama of old American clipper days, "Captain Salvation," current attraction at Loew's Orpheum.

'BIG BROTHER' EMERY ON BILL AT KEITH'S

In one of the cleverest vaudeville ideas of the year, William Harrigan introduced his father's successes under the title, "Memories of Harrigan and Hart," an unusual attraction which heads a good bill at Keith's Theatre this week.

The radio personality, Bob Emery, repeated the stuff which has thrilled thousands of boys and girls. With his twelve joy spreaders, "Big Brother" presented a revue of fun and music.

Ina Alcova, a clever and nimble dancer, assisted by a company of four, showed themselves to be artful exponents of "Rythmic Feet."

Feminine types of the day were monologued by Claudia Coleman, known imitator of the favored types. Cole and Snyder, Stutz and Bingham, Hope Vernon and The Thrillers complete the bill.

SEA FILM IS FEATURE AT ORPHEUM

The screen attraction at Loew's Orpheum this week is "Captain Salvation," an adventurous film romance of the sea, adapted from the novel by Frederick William Wallace.

This vivid tale of men who go down to the sea in ships is portrayed on the screen by an exceptionally brilliant cast, including such well known players as Lars Hanson, Marceline Day, Pauline Starke, Ernest Torrence, George Fawcett, Sam De Grasse and others of note.

"Captain Salvation" is packed with spectacular and highly exciting scenes. It tells the red-blooded romance of courageous men and daring women, battling the fury of the sea, the intolerance of petty conventions and the brutal captain of a convict ship. All in all, a very exciting and entertaining film.

Loew's vaudeville is headed by Mary Sabbott, musical comedy star, with her own company of singers and dancers including Jack La Frack, Carol Solga and Ve Elle girls. Al Abbott is seen in a new comedy skit, "At the Old Town Hall."

LINDBERGH FESTIVAL AT REVERE FRIDAY

Revere Beach is making gala plans for the Lindbergh festival Friday night. Not only the Revere Chamber of Commerce, but also the proprietors of amusement houses and business men are collaborating.

The spectacle will be called "Fire and Flame," and will look like a blazing city, a replica of the burning of Rome.

Goes to West Coast

Commander Robert B. Hilliard, son of the famous actor, who has been on duty at the Charlestown navy yard, since 1924, is to be transferred to the Puget Sound yard about the middle of September.

NILSSON FILM AT OLYMPIA THIS WEEK

"The Masked Woman," a fast moving tale of Paris and Monte Carlo in their gayest moments, is holding the attention of patrons of the Olympia, and with such players as Anna Q. Nilsson, Holbrook Blinn and Charlie Murray attending the artistic responsibilities there is plenty of reason for the excellent and cheering performance.

Anna Q. Nilsson

The picture presents the the problem of whether or not a woman is ever justified in risking her reputation for any cause—no matter how worthy—and solves it with a novel twist.

It is an unusual plot with a tremendous climax, woven into scintillating scenes depicting luxurious life on the Continent, introducing a Roman banquet, with the guests reclining on silken cushions at the feast; authentic scenes from a sophisticated French revue; a battle royal among fourteen gorgeously gowned ladies for jewels and money during which the unmatchable Parisian costumes are torn almost to shreds, and other thrills of color and action.

BOWDOIN SQUARE—"Frisco Sally Levy," with Sally O'Neil, "Ankles Preferred," with Madge Bellamy, and "The Prodigal Bridegroom," with Ben Turpin.

'FATTY' ARBUCKLE TO APPEAR AT ORPHEUM

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, rotund comedian of the films, will make a personal visit to Boston next week to fill a vaudeville engagement at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. Arbuckle's stay at the Orpheum will bring to a close his brief vaudeville tour of the leading cities of the country. His future plans, already arranged, call for his re-appearance in a series of screen comedies to be made abroad.

BOAT DANCES ATTRACT MANY

The coolest spot to be found within a score of miles of Boston during the hot weather is on the deck of the night boat, Mayflower, owned and operated as a dance craft by the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company. The boat leaves Rowe's Wharf at 8:30 every evening and returns at 11:30 after circling the harbor.

To the enchanting music furnished by "The Jolly Sailors" orchestra, dancing is enjoyed over a route which includes part of the North Shore, including Marblehead, and from that point the craft swings its bow toward Minot's Light in the outer harbor where the air is steeped in fresh sea-tanged ozone.

The boat swings around Minot's Light and cruises along to Pemberton, where it makes the only stop of the evening, arriving there at 11.

FORBIDDEN TO BETRAY BUSINESS SECRETS

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19 (A.P.).—Business secrets are sacred and confidential information learned while in the employe of one company must not be divulged by an employe who later becomes associated with his former employer's competitor, according to an Allegheny County court ruling.

An injunction has been granted restraining W. W. Oberlin, formerly a bookkeeper with the Witherow Steel Company from revealing any secrets pertaining to processes, methods of manufacture, inventory costs and sales costs to rival concerns.

BEAUTY SERIES STARTS FRIDAY

The first of a series of theatre preliminary contests for the selection of a "Miss Boston," which will take place at the Modern, Beacon, Shawmut, Criterion, Dudley, Rivall, Jamaica, Rialto, Norton, and Franklin Park Theatres, are scheduled at the Dudley and Rivall Theatres on next Friday night.

At that time a beauty contest with the highest feminine prize in America as the goal—the title of "Miss America 1927"—will take place. Five girls will be selected from the patrons of these theatres to enter the final contest from which "Miss Boston" and her alternate will be chosen to represent the city at the Atlantic City Pageant during the week of Sept. 6. The final contest for the selection of "Miss Boston" will be at the Boston Arena Friday night, Aug. 12th.

NEW MUSICAL REVUE AT TREMONT MONDAY

Rosalie Stewart's first venture in musical revue, "A La Carte," will take the stage at the Tremont next Monday. Unusual interest is attending this offering because of the high standard of theatrical production already established by Miss Stewart in "The Torch Bearers," "The Show-Off" and "Craig's Wife."

Harriet Hoctor.

George Kelly, the author of these dramatic successes, has written several sketches for the new revue. Included in the list of players assembled for "A La Carte" are Chick York and Rose King, Harriet Hoctor, well known in musical comedy; William Holbrook and a score of other vaudevillians.

Wins Architecture Prize

SHARKEY EXPECTS TO K.O. TIGER IN EIGHT

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

Dempsey Says He Is on Edge for Big Battle

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Here's Real Low Down on Jack Dempsey

By NICK FLATLEY

Now here is the real dope on Dempsey.

He's in glorious physical shape, as brown as a berry and as hard as a rock. He can dance through a dozen rounds and be ready for more. He has been swapping real punches in his private practice.

BUT HE ISN'T THE DEADLY TIGER HE USED TO BE.

Make a note of that and let your conscience be your guide when placing bets.

Dempsey Continues To Believe Sharkey Is a Real Set-Up

Jack has been doing his real boxing in the [illegible] of the morning in the [illegible] of his cottage [illegible] to enter without the [illegible] badge of the [illegible]

[illegible] Jack was [illegible] his last public performance for the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Jack Dempsey, [illegible] by the shrewd Leo [illegible] has been [illegible] to go into the ring with [illegible] Sharkey [illegible] on the [illegible] He [illegible] that he's all shot. He wants [illegible] to have too much confidence, to think the fight is just a [illegible]

Nick Flatley

[illegible] Dempsey thinks he is [illegible] He [illegible] as he [illegible] down [illegible] the [illegible] structure of his [illegible] He takes great [illegible] to [illegible] the barrel that is [illegible]

Jack thinks [illegible] there, the same [illegible] Sharkey into a [illegible] and then [illegible] to get even with Tunney for [illegible] of the Sesquicentennial [illegible] September.

DEMPSEY has been sitting back, [illegible] the crowds [illegible] He feels like a [illegible] and thinks that [illegible]

Up here in the [illegible] of Saratoga [illegible] and his manager Leo [illegible] believe they have the Sharkey camp down in New York [illegible] That [illegible] to [illegible] a quick and [illegible]

"I never thought the old wish to get back would return," said Dempsey this morning, "but it has. I feel just like I did out in Toledo, when I was rarin' to go, but frightened to death beside Big Jess Willard." And Jack means it.

"Sharkey is a set up," [illegible] Leo Flynn, who [illegible] know better. He'd be frightened to death and [illegible] he gets over it he'd be looking at the [illegible]"

[illegible] the Saratoga spirit as the [illegible] and preparing to go down to New York for the big [illegible] It has spread all over the town. Even the wise boys [illegible] to see what it's all about are [illegible] They read of New York's odds of 8 to 5 on Sharkey, laugh and put their money down on Dempsey at evens or anything that's offered.

Most of them are crying for 1 to 2 bets on the Dempsey knockout proposition. Easiest thing in the world to get a "twisted" viewpoint, while lingering around a training camp.

DEMPSEY has picked up twelve pounds since he fought Tunney last September. He will scale 200 when he enters the ring Thursday. That poundage is all in his shoulders and legs. Which means that the [illegible] that gave him his [illegible] and his tireless boxing energy have softened up.

Old Jack has just one of his great assets—the assets that made him [illegible] He still packs a ferocious left hand. He can [illegible] and dent whatever he hits.

But that's all he has. He hasn't the speed to carry himself through a [illegible] of blows and get away with that left. He hasn't the [illegible] with the right hand that used to clear the path for the great [illegible]

His legs have thickened up and he can't [illegible] as he used to. And his legs will get weary and [illegible] down in the Thursday fight [illegible] past the sixth or seventh round.

Dempsey is a dancing master, a flashy boxer for two or three rounds of practice. Then he begins to lag.

If Sharkey doesn't step into one of those left hand wallops in the early part of the fight, he will have a tired Dempsey to poke back and smack, an easier target with each succeeding round.

THIS is what his sparring partners say, now that they have been paid off, and have no more secrets to conceal. The following remarks were not handed out as interviews, were merely chatter while the boys were getting ready to [illegible] away from here to [illegible]

"I wish," remarked Dave [illegible] who [illegible] "I was [illegible] Sharkey's [illegible] at Dempsey."

"Jack can still [illegible] 'em, with his left hand," chirped Tillie Herman, a welter weighing 159. "When he hits with that, he hurts. I didn't come here as a sparring partner. I came because Jack is my pal, the greatest guy in the world, and I thought I could help him to speed up.

"We don't box when we get together. The last two or three mornings we have been fighting. I have been whanging him and he has been giving it to me. When he landed that left, I thought my ribs were gone, but I usually kept him back by shooting my own left to his chin.

"I could walk into his [illegible] and take a chance to get inside that left. And I think he was just as tired as I was at the end of three rounds." Tillie is just what the boys would call pretty good in his own class.

THE Dempsey camp believes that Sharkey cannot take it. They think that Boston Jack will wilt under body punishment. They don't stop to figure that Dempsey, while he's getting in his body thumps, will be smacked more or less promiscuously in the face.

The Dempsey camp is wildly overconfident, as we see things, and the

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 19.—I found Mr. Boston sitting in with Tex Rickard in the latter's private office at the Garden.

"My box office men tell me the advance sale for the Dempsey-Sharkey bout has passed the $900,000 mark," said Tex. "It will be over a million by tonight. Wednesday and Thursday will see a sale of $250,000. This will mean a complete sell-out.

"If Dempsey and Sharkey draw $1,250,000 it will be the third largest [illegible] Dempsey and [illegible] One must remember [illegible] [illegible] championship [illegible] The Dempsey-Sharkey [illegible] merely [illegible] [illegible] fight [illegible] when it comes to [illegible] the fans. A [illegible] boxing writers have been asking [illegible] with the boxing game. I [illegible] the fans [illegible] back waiting for the Dempsey-Sharkey [illegible]

"When Tunney defends his title in September he will draw [illegible] twice as much money as Dempsey and Sharkey will. I look for Tunney against the winner of Thursday night's contest to play to a gate of $2,500,000.

"SUCH a house will be possible on account of the tremendous seating [illegible] at Soldiers' Field, Chicago. They have got 110,000 persons in at football games at Soldiers' Field. With additional seats on the playing field, it will be possible to care for 150,000 persons at this contest.

Mr. Boston

"When I buy the Polo Grounds and remodel it for boxing, I shall be able to take care of 125,000 fans at bouts in New York. One must have seating capacity for the big shows. Otherwise you cannot get the championship matches.

"I can get $1,250,000 in money in at the Yankee Stadium, but I would not be able to make much of a profit on a Tunney match if I were to stage it there. I have guaranteed Gene $500,000 while he is also getting a fifty per cent. privilege. The winner of the Dempsey-Sharkey match will receive fifty per cent. to battle the champion. I would have to pay the owners of the ball park $100,000. Then there are the preliminary bouts and other expenses. It would cost more than a million dollars to put the match on."

MR. BOSTON reflected a moment and then started to talk.

"The winner of the Dempsey-Sharkey match will pick up around $300,000 more in the little affair with Tunney in September. Sharkey has already pulled down $85,000 for bouts this year. So if he can clear the Dempsey hurdle and then battle Tunney his earnings for the year will total $600,000. Quite a flock of money for a 24-year-old youngster who was in the Navy three and a half years ago.

LEWIS WHITE ADVANCES TO THIRD ROUND

With light rain falling at intervals, play in the second and third rounds of the Longwood Bowl singles tournament was started on the grass courts of the Longwood Cricket Club this afternoon.

In the first second round match completed, Lewis M. White, who ranks No. 2 on the seeded list, won his way into the third round by easily disposing of W. W. Cuff of Boston, 6—1, 6—1. In another second round match [illegible]

If You Want to Fight

the SHARKEY-DEMPSEY battle over with your friends after it is all finished, and wish to speak with some authority of the hooks and jabs and what have you, that settled the affair, you MUST read the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN sport pages on FRIDAY

THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN has the greatest staff of experts in the country lined up to give the BEST and BIGGEST account of the great heavyweight battle at the Yankee Stadium on Thursday.

Look over this array of stars who will cover the bout

JACK CONWAY, the ONLY boxing writer in the country who predicted that Sharkey, when only a preliminary fighter, would one day be up there, BATTLING FOR THE HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP, and unanimously acknowledged to be one of the best boxing writers in the country.

NICK FLATLEY, Sports Editor of the Boston Evening American, a keen observer, a clear and clever writer.

JACK DEMPSEY HIMSELF, who will write his side of the bout for the readers of the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, exclusively.

GENE TUNNEY, present champion, who will have to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Dempsey bout.

DAMON RUNYON, who will paint a vivid word picture of the battle that has the whole country by the ears

JIM CORBETT, former heavyweight champion

AND—other nationally known writers, whose articles will present the bout itself, and all the sidelights, in such vivid style that you'll have missed nothing by not having been at the ringside.

DON'T FORGET that THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN will also have a FIGHT EXTRA on the street, containing a round by round story, AS SOON AS THE FIGHT IS OVER

A BLOW BY BLOW account of the battle will be relayed from the office of the Boston Evening American by a leather-lunged orator, armed with a megaphone

COME TO WINTHROP SQUARE, in front of the Boston Evening American office—HEAR the fight—then READ the story of the struggle, and you will be just as satisfied as if you had gone to New York—and you can put the price of a fight ticket in the bank.

Cincinnati Shows New Lease of Life Against Tribe at Braves Field

The luckless Braves and the Cincinnati Reds, only lately favored by fortune, hook up in the fourth game of their series at Braves Field this afternoon, with the Tribe groggy after dropping three straight to the invaders. The Braves and Reds hook up in a doubleheader tomorrow afternoon.

Not only that, but yesterday's setback, a rather heartbreaking ten-inning affair, clamped the Warriors still further down in the cellar. They had plenty of opportunities to squeeze back into seventh place, but failed to quite make it and suffered once again the [illegible] taste of defeat by a one-run [illegible].

Cleveland, O., July 19.—The Indians and Boston Red Sox staged a [illegible] doubleheader here this afternoon, their third in four days. Walter Miller, who threw a victory over the New York Yankees last week, was on the hill for the Tribe, with Hal Wiltse, another southpaw, laboring for the Red Sox.

FIRST INNING

Red Sox—Flagstead singled to left. Myer sacrificed, Miller to Burns. Rothrock filed to Summa. J. Sewell threw out Regan. NO RUNS.

Indians—Wiltse tossed out Jamieson. Spurgeon singled. Summa forced Spurgeon, Rothrock to Myer. Wiltse threw out Burns. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Red Sox—Lutzke threw out Shaner. Welch doubled. Rogell hit [illegible] too late to third to get Welch, and both runners were safe. Hofmann's sacrifice to Summa scored Welch. Miller [illegible] ONE RUN.

[illegible] Autry [illegible] advanced on a wild pitch. Jacobson popped to Regan. Lutzke tapped to Rothrock, and J. Sewell was trapped, but got back to third safely, but Autry was out when he also occupied the bag. [illegible] to Rogell [illegible] scoring J. Sewell and [illegible] Jamieson. TWO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Red Sox—Flagstead singled. Myer grounded out to Burns. Flagstead was out stealing, Autry to Spurgeon. J. Sewell threw out Rothrock. NO RUNS.

Indians—Myer threw out Spurgeon. Summa doubled, but was out when he overslid the bag, Welch to Myer. Regan tossed out Burns. NO RUNS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 18.—"Sharkey can't take left hooks in the body," Leo P. Flynn told me when we had our first confab about this fight for Thursday night.

"Then that's what he'll get," I said.

Right, said Flynn. Since which time my training has been concentrated upon driving left hooks into human bodies.

And that, plus a right for the body as a counter for a left jab, has been the real secret of my training program. In all my other fights I never tried any defense against left jabs, nor any real counter attack for left jabs. I'd just go tearing into a man, trying to get inside and trying and trying, taking all I had to take for the privilege of getting a few swipes at him when he left an opening.

But this time it's different. If my plans work out as I hope, then Sharkey is going to get plenty of right hand smashes in the ribs in exchange for his left jabs. I've worked on that punch—and worked on it.

I have not perfected it as I might with more training, but I think I have acquired the knack to such a point that if Sharkey starts out thinking he's going to jab my head off, without a return, he's going to be a sadly mistaken young man.

AND while I've practised that I've certainly practised overtime with the left hook for the liver. In the other days I was not so good with that punch because I was swinging too much, but in this camp here I have gathered in pretty good marksmanship with it—and I am told by my sparring partners that it has plenty of power.

If Sharkey thinks he is going to hold me back for any great length of time with that highly touted (but highly doubted) defense of his, he is a young man with a bad idea. For, in the first place, the hardest punch in the world to guard against is any kind of a left hook.

I've never seen the man—or known the man—who could defend himself successfully against left hooks for the body that were thrown from short range and with a fair amount of accuracy. Jim Corbett is rated as the most masterful boxer of all time; as the greatest defensive fighter that ever lived. Yet Jim admitted to me that keeping out of the way of a well-timed left hook for the body was the thing that even he could not do with any degree of success.

SHARKEY is not Corbett. And if Corbett couldn't keep out of the way of left hooks for the liver—well, how can Sharkey expect to do it? And it is all true that Sharkey cannot take such punches, absorb them and go right on fighting as if nothing at all had happened—well, whenever I get to thinking about how that left hook for the body is working, and about how Sharkey is supposed to dislike them, I begin to think about what sort of [illegible] about when I get my shot at Tunney in September.

Governor and Mayor to See Big Fight

New York, July 19.—Among the reservations noted in the Madison Square Garden reservation list are those in the names of Mayor Nichols of Boston, as well as Governor Fuller and Lieutenant-Governor Allen. Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania has requested reservations, and Dempsey has telegraphed that he wants to "take care of four governors." Tom Mix, Tom Meighan, David Belasco, Galli Curci and Charles Chaplin are other names down for Thursday's tickets. All of these were present among the 130,000 who saw Dempsey lose his title to Gene Tunney in a downpour of rain at Philadelphia last September.

FIGHT RETURNS AT FORT BANKS

In addition to the regular weekly program of 38 rounds of boxing at Fort Banks next Thursday night, July 21, Capt. Lowry, athletic director at the fort has secured the services of a well known firm to broadcast the complete returns of the Dempsey-Sharkey affair from New York.

Charlie Ricardi, M. N. G., is slated to meet eight rounds with Willie Garo of East Boston, who is a great favorite at the fort.

The semi-final should be fast and interesting as the fiery Filipino, Pete Chico has at last consented to take on Eddie Curly of Roxbury for an eight round bout.

The other eight will bring out Frankie Moore of Medford and Johnny Ross of the North End. There will be two six round bouts between Johnny Parker, M. N. G. and [illegible] Burns, Woburn, in the [illegible] class and [illegible] Johnston of Vermont and Dan Cronin of Cork.

Murphy and Lynch stand out as the [illegible] among the Juniors but [illegible] has ever been able to [illegible] the [illegible] in this [illegible] events the [illegible] surprises. Conroy was [illegible] more than a mere mention by [illegible] of the critics last year at Wood[illegible] The experts were picking [illegible] Murphy and "Chick" Grasse of Mt Pleasant to battle it out in the finals, but both of these boys were [illegible] before Saturday and Frank Hersey and Conroy [illegible] it out, the latter winning 3 and 2.

Murphy and Lynch are great golfers. They have been up among the [illegible] for a couple of years despite their youth. Murphy took [illegible] Ouimet [illegible] the [illegible] Country Club in the State a couple of years ago, while Lynch is the caddy champion of the State [illegible] shot 150 to win his title at Albemarle last year.

It will not be to the advantage of either Murphy or Lynch to know that they are favored to win the [illegible]. The responsibility will [illegible] heavily on them. They are both high strung and have not been [illegible] to take the bitter with the sweet, which is absolutely essential to success in golf or any other [illegible] of sports.

After studying the entries, the writer is of the opinion that Wallace Coolidge of Arlmont, Johnnie [illegible] of Concord, Jimmie Bullock, the Lexington boy who plays from [illegible]carboro and Jerry Moore of Wood[illegible] and form a tough quartette for either Murphy or Lynch to break through.

Flynn Tells Why Dempsey Will Win

By GEORGE BARRY

International News Service Special Correspondent

Sharkey's Appetite Lost First Big Fight

[illegible]

"Bet on Sharkey to Win by K. O.," Urges Buckley

By JOHNNY BUCKLEY,
Manager of Jack Sharkey.

NEW YORK, July 19.—I'm ready to make my prediction. It's short and sweet—Sharkey will win by a knockout.

Dempsey will not come up for the bell in the eleventh round. Sharkey will knock him out somewhere between the eighth and tenth rounds.

If I were forced to pick a round I would say the eighth. I have two reasons for picking Sharkey.

First, I think Sharkey is a better fighter now than Dempsey. Second, I think that Sharkey is a better fighter than Dempsey ever was.

I know that many good boxing men will break out laughing when I say that. The future will prove that I am right. The day will come when they will take that second assertion as a matter of course. Dempsey never could fight boxers. Sharkey is a good boxer, a great ring general and one of the gamest men that ever pulled on a glove.

What did Dempsey do against [illegible]? He managed [illegible] [illegible] who refereed [illegible] have [illegible] to give Gibbons the decision at the end of ten rounds.

Gibbons came here and Gene Tunney knocked him out.

Then Tunney ran [illegible] on a match [illegible] with Sharkey. That shows what Tunney thinks of Sharkey. He will [illegible] to fight him after this fight. He won't be able to get out of it this time.

Dempsey was a great fighter against a target. He never was [illegible] fight boxers. His manager, Jack Kearns, was smart enough to see to that. He couldn't help himself this time.

If you're betting on Sharkey don't waste your time on a [illegible]. Pick him by a knockout inside of ten rounds.

Leo Flynn Chief Second for Dempsey

White Sulphur Springs, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., July 19 (AP).—The three advisers and handlers most closely connected with Jack Dempsey's comeback will be in his corner Thursday night when he fights Jack Sharkey in the Yankee Stadium.

Manager Leo P. Flynn will be the former champion's chief second. He will be aided by Gus Wilson, trainer, who was with Dempsey last year, and Jerry Luvadis, the Greek trainer, who has been Dempsey's personal attendant for years.

JOCKEY, 88 YEARS OLD, MAKES SANDE FINISH

Tonopah, Nev., July 19.—Despite his eighty-eight years Jack Longstreet, picturesque Nevada character, mounted his favorite horse, Woodpecker, Jr., and rode him to win in the old-timers horse race.

Yelling like a Comanche Indian and plying the leather into his steed, Longstreet piloted his horse down the stretch like Earle Sande and won by a nose.

The aged jockey, said to be a close relative of General Longstreet, famous Confederate soldier, came to Nevada in 1867. His life has been marked by thrilling adventures. Seven notches on his wicked looking pistol indicate that Longstreet was forced to "shoot it out" on more than one occasion.

FRANCE DENIES CASH FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

Paris, July 19.—There seems a doubt whether France will be represented in the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam. Failure of the French Senate to ratify the bill appropriating 2,000,000 francs for expenses of French athletes has created consternation among athletic associations.

The Olympic bill was killed a few hours before the Senate adjourned in October. Even if credits are voted when the body convenes in October, it will be too late to get men ready for the events.

JACK DEMPSEY IN FINE SHAPE

boys are not at all prepared to face a situation that a fighter as crafty and shrewd as Sharkey is likely to put up to them.

Dempsey, with his secret boxing and his show of clumsiness, has been kidding himself in the opinion of your correspondent. His old physical power is gone. He hasn't the urge and the fire that go with youthful advance on the legions.

He is still as game as they make them and tough. But he will not have the power to carry on if he doesn't win quickly; if the fight is fast and furious at the start, as the Tiger will try to make it, Sharkey will undoubtedly carry it on.

DEMPSEY has the physical perfection that a fighter develops that gets from a strenuous siege of golf and horseback riding and outdoors. He is hard as nails and healthy as a human can be. Sharkey has the abundant strength of youth, and resiliency of fresh muscularity. If he gets hammered early he can come back.

If Dempsey takes in the first few rounds, it would seem impossible that he could respond.

Tiger Jack will go in for a quick knockout. He will try to win while his grand heart is pumping and his great muscles are functioning. But he has never been stacked against such a combination of shadowy elusiveness and deadly punishing power as young Mister Sharkey will present.

Enough to make a pipe get puffed up

IF YOUR jimmy-pipe could talk, it would say: "Fill me with Prince Albert and watch me strut. I'll repay you a hundredfold." No doubt about it, many a pipe has been blamed for things that weren't its fault a-tall. You have no idea how well a pipe behaves on P. A.

On my say-so, buy yourself a tidy red tin of good old P. A. today. Throw back the hinged lid and revel in that fragrance of the world's greatest pipe-tobacco, bar none. Then tuck a neat wad into the business-end of your pipe and light up. There's the answer to every pipe-wish.

Cool as a pound-keeper. Sweet as escape from the place he keeps. Mild, but with that full, satisfying flavor of the greatest tobacco that ever tumbled into a pipe. No matter how wide you open the smoke-throttle, there isn't a stop-sign or a detour anywhere.

Nearby is a store where they hand out jimmy-pipe joy in tidy red tins. My advice to you is to make tracks for there at once. Fill your pipe with this glorious tobacco and get the fun that's due you. No matter what your present program is, try P. A. Give your pipe a chance!

P. A. [illegible] removed by the Prince Albert process.

Zippy Drinks for Parties on the Porch

By MARTHA LEE

WHAT'S more welcome to the casual caller or [illegible] guest than a tall glass brimful of [illegible] and a [illegible] crystal cold drink? The same drink that father [illegible] pantry assumes a festive air served in [illegible] glass with a colorful sipper-spoon, with a [illegible] at [illegible].

Speaking of [illegible], have you [illegible] ordered [illegible] told you [illegible] The [illegible] [illegible] But to get back to the beverages that are so [illegible] delicious [illegible] [illegible] cookie [illegible]

GINGER ALE WITH PINEAPPLE—1 [illegible] pineapple juice, 1 cup powdered sugar, 1 [illegible] ginger ale.

Into a [illegible] glass put the pineapple juice and powdered sugar [illegible] of pineapple syrup may be used instead. Then fill glasses with cold ginger ale, adding [illegible] of pineapple. Cut in cubes and serve. If fresh pineapple is used [illegible] and in glass with sugar for 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

FRUIT RICKEY—1 cup raspberry or loganberry juice, canned or fresh, [illegible] cup powdered sugar, juice of 2 lemons; white of 1 egg, 2 cups of chilled pale dry ginger ale, maraschino cherries.

If fresh fruit juice is used crush [illegible] [illegible] and add the [illegible] water. Pour into [illegible] glasses.

ROOT BEER—Bottle of root beer extract dissolved in [illegible] gallons of [illegible] water. All four pounds [illegible] granulated [illegible]. Half cake fresh yeast. (If [illegible] double the quantity of yeast.) Dissolve the sugar thoroughly in water, then add the root beer extract and yeast. Dissolve the yeast cake in a little cold water, as it will mix more readily.

Stir until thoroughly mixed and bottle in strong bottles or jugs [illegible] [illegible] set in a warm place [illegible] [illegible] it can be [illegible] set in a cool place [illegible] the yeast becomes [illegible] and cannot [illegible].

It will be ready to drink in forty-eight hours after being bottled but will open more effervescently if allowed to stand three to four days. It should then be set in a cool place [illegible]. Just before [illegible] will be sparkling [illegible].

SARSAPARILLA AND LIMEADE—[illegible] juice, [illegible]

[illegible] together the [illegible] sugar [illegible] up the glasses with sarsaparilla, garnishing with slices of fresh lime or lemon.

ORANGE AND GINGER ALE PUNCH—Two cups [illegible], 1 cup [illegible] of 2 [illegible] bottles [illegible] [illegible] chilled [illegible].

How to Perfect the Contour of Your Neck

By Maria Jeritza

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day

HALF the secret of possessing a beautiful neck and shoulders is carrying them well. Muscles always carried erect grow firm and strong and take on the right amount of fat padding.

At your next dinner-party, [illegible] you find your eyes resting on the lovely sweep of neck and shoulders of some woman wearing a low-cut gown, notice whether she carries her head, neck and shoulders with graceful erectness. The chances are one hundred to one that she does.

A woman with the habit of [illegible] or drooping her shoulders and neck will in time acquire [illegible], due to relaxed [illegible]. For [illegible] under strain lose their tone, become flabby and take on an awkward contour.

The very first—and most important—step for improving the contour of the chin, neck and shoulders is to acquire the habit of carrying them, not stiffly or rigidly, but easily straight.

And the time to begin to carry yourself beautifully—if, indeed, you are not now distinguished for erect grace—is today.

There may be times when you are fatigued, and it seems easier to droop your shoulders and neck than to carry them straight. But it is not really easier. Erect muscles enable the blood to circulate actively through your body. And this free circulation relieves fatigue. If you are too tired to stand straight, lie down and relax completely for a moment. But when you do stand, see to it that you stand erect, with your neck and spine straight, your chin over your breast-bone. Then your shoulders will naturally fall into correct position.

The penalty for slumping may not be noticeable at first. But in time the result is sure to be loose, crepey skin and flabby muscles or loose folds of fat across the shoulders, upper back and under the chin.

Here are two exercises designed to strengthen and straighten the muscles of the neck, back and shoulders. You will enjoy practicing them, for they are restful and invigorating.

Stand straight with your feet a few inches apart, your weight over the balls of your feet. With your right hand, grasp the back of your neck firmly and extend your left arm to the side. Holding this position bend as far forward as you can from the waist. Repeat the exercise fifteen times each morning, then alternate fifteen times, grasping your neck with your left hand and bending.

Stand straight, then lean backward slowly until your hands grasp the backs of your legs as near the knees as you can reach. Do not strain in practicing this exercise. Be content to gradually increase the number of times you try it each day until you can repeat it ten times or more without fatigue.

Both exercises are an aid [illegible] reducing. Strange to say they will also help to put flesh on scrawny muscles. They will strengthen and tone your muscles and if you practice them faithfully should add slender, firm grace to the contour of your neck and shoulders.

Reed Discusses Poisons in Food

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

FOOD is sometimes justly, but more often unjustly, blamed for disease.

This mildew or mould is often feared and frequently held to be the cause of illness. But in the opinion of Sir William R. Smith, in the Edinburgh Journal of State Medicine, it is quite harmless. His verdict seems to be based upon the fact that he was consulted recently by a restaurant company who were being sued for damages by a client who had eaten one of their apple tarts, alleged to have mildew on it, and after finding that the patient was really suffering from advanced kidney disease he stated that not only has he never heard of illness being caused by mildew, but that no case has ever been reported in medical literature. Heavily mildewed cheese is eaten, as he says, in large quantities without any harmful effects every day.

But in spite of this and other facts, and in spite of the conclusion of Sir William R. Smith that mildew on food is of itself innocuous, nobody either wishes to or should eat mildewed food. The very significant fact remains that the food is not fresh, that it has been improperly kept, that it is the seat of chemical changes that make it a fertile soil for the mould plant, that such changes vitiate its food value if they do not render it poisonous.

When you suspect food poisoning there are four rules by which you may settle the question.

(1) The food must contain something capable of causing illness, (2) the symptoms must be compatible with food poisoning; (3) other factors which might explain the attack must be eliminated, and (4) all or nearly all, the sufferers, if there are more than one, must have eaten the suspected food.

Food can cause poisoning in two ways. (1) By containing definite chemical poison; or (2) by being infected with micro-organisms that can produce poisonous substances, either in the food itself or in the body after it is eaten.

Many kinds of bacterial contamination are not poisonous and the bacilli which make food poisonous are nearly all well known.

Stale food and meat that has become tainted do not poison unless they have become infected with a food-poisoning bacillus. This only happens occasionally even in meat, where bacilli grow rapidly. An apple tart is not a good soil for the growth of bacilli.

Home Hints

We all know that the most valuable part of the potato lies immediately below the skin and that potatoes should be cooked in their jackets if we are to get the maximum amount of nutriment from them. But many people do not care for the potato cooked this way. Here is another. Scrub the potatoes and place them in a saucepan of boiling water, cooking them for three or four minutes. Take them out and it will be found a very easy matter to pare off the skin. The potatoes may now be boiled or steamed in the ordinary way. In paring the potato in this way not a scrap of the flesh is removed.

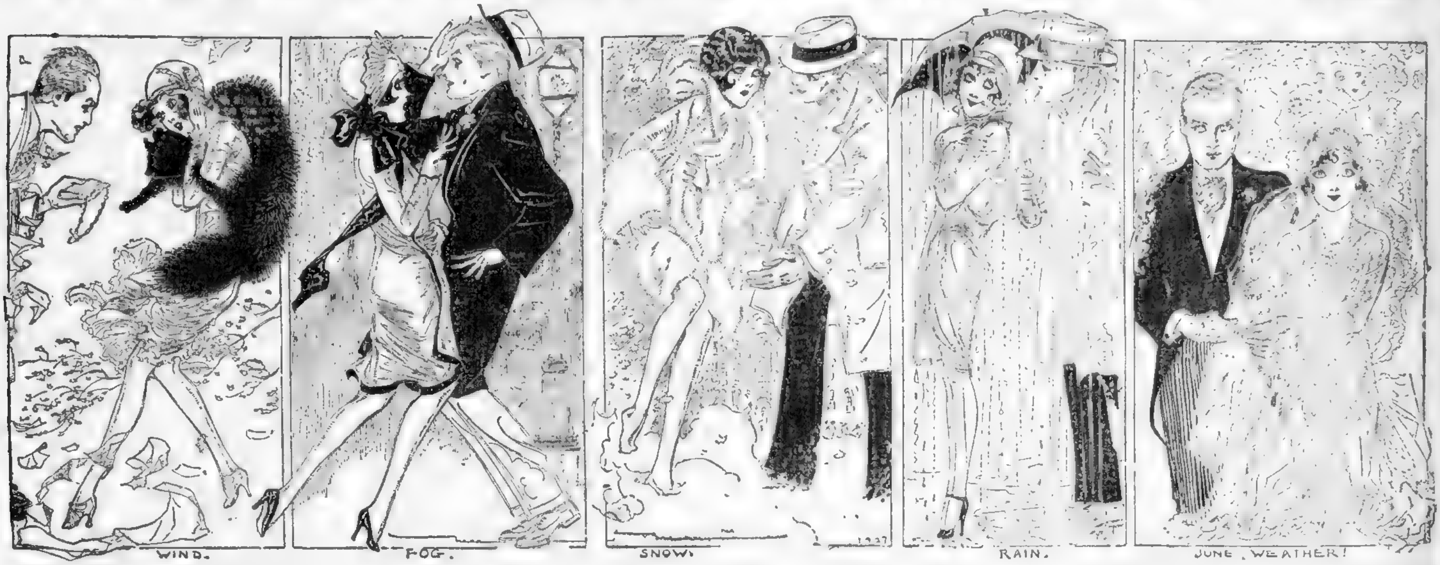
"It's an Ill Wind That Blows No Fellow Some Good!"

DRAWN BY
Nell Brinkley



SOME folks say that Nature, the High Lady, is against man. But at the worst she is only indifferent to his fate! Wind may drive mad the nervous person who has no lover's iron in the fire; but it drives a pretty girl straight into the arms of an admiring stranger and enables him to put some of her precious possessions that had galloped off down the street, into her hand. Then fog, and the same pretty girl indignantly popping against him. But when she sees that she has knocked his hat off, and that he is the same nice young man who gave her back her vanity bag, she cannot pout. She speaks. Hurray—they are almost friends! Then it snows. Again the pretty girl—hopping on one foot with a lost slipper, from a taxi to a friend's party. This time, with a dizzy head—it's a marvel that he gets there! He CARRIES the delightful little person that has begun to color his dreams with rainbow hues, into the house, and is invited to the party himself! Then rain—and she is delighted to see him and his umbrella!

For the next episode Nature clears her skies. Hand in glove with Cupid. And they label it "Perfect June Weather." And you know what happens in June—quite often.—NELL BRINKLEY.

"SHACKLED SOULS"
Story of a Girl Who Asked That Life Should Pay Her in Full

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER 59.

She walked over and raked the fire and whispered to it: "Good being here!" Oh, the child would be happy and free in this old home, this old living room where her own childhood had passed. He belonged here.

She reached out, yearning, and beckoned him. Now dearly and gaily he was come. And the long emptiness filled up with beauty.

Here he would grow up. She would mother him as she mothered her brother, teaching him all strong, noble ways. So that he might grow tall and bonny with a laugh on his lips and a fine, high purpose in his thought. Be dear and adorable always as Jackie had been—oh, be brave and worthy and gaily glad for life.

His way would be hard. She would teach him to go gallantly with shoulders squared—dauntless though a mother only stole him here! Because he was here, he would do it!

She glanced at the tiny chap who had scrambled from Mark's arms and now kept running to the fire, putting out his hands and calling, exultantly, "Hot! Hot!" backing away and rushing up to repeat, warningly, "Hot! Hot."

There was no stain on this little bright spirit—no shadow on his heart. There should not be! He would be safe.

She plunged to him and caught him up vigorously and whispering the funny rhymes that he loved carried him off to bed. Put him in Jackie's room—summoning an old [illegible] gaiety—an old stalwart rug to protect him.

She kneeled and murmured whimsically: "The bow-wow is asleep; the meow is asleep, the baby must sleep."

He mimicked her shaking his finger close to his eyes with a stealthy: "SHSH!" And almost in a moment curled up contentedly, the guilty fingers in his mouth.

Roen leaned over him. Here, often she had carried her little brother; here she had brought Evelyn's baby. Here, at last, was this one. Here it could be glad!

She went back to Mark and with a flash of vital sweetness took his face in her hands. Gazing into his wistful, suffering eyes she said, as long ago she said to Dearie, "Go and look at him! How can I be sad?"

But when Mark looked at the baby; when he felt those small arms squeezed about his knees, his whole spirit quailed.

He said to Roen starkly, his eyes indeed sunken because of a haggard emaciation in his face—the look of him broke her heart; . . . he said grimly: "Roen, I can't let this be done to him."

"What do you mean?"

"We can't let the boy pay."

"It is too late to speak of it. He must pay. But I will make life worth the price to him. Make him glad and careless of the price."

"How, Roen? How? You will tell the world you have adopted him."

"Suppose this nurse encountered you," he went on. "That you are not Mrs. Robert Jackson, but Roen Rose."

"No matter what I do, Mark, there will be [illegible]."

"And if any [illegible] attacks," he went on [illegible] and ruthless, "where are your adoption papers?"

She leaned forward, her eyes wide and accusing. "Why are you saying these things? Why would you fill me with dread? And I can be filled with dread—now—[illegible] but why should you do this? No one of these things may ever happen."

"And all might [illegible] his own happiness. All hope of this is long past. And no matter what path I now take I am hurting and killing. I don't know why this should be—why things have walled about us so. If I let you go on this way, by some chance the real story of his birth may be told. You do not know how he would react to this.

"His life is new. No matter who suffers, he should be protected because more than all others he is defenseless.

"Roen, I am going to get free. You must agree to this."

She repeated after him soberly: "You are going to get free?"

"There is nothing else for me to do. In all the wrong I do—this will be least wrong."

She leaned over and touched his shoulder: "You will get free from Claire now? When she is blind? When she has not one—not even a mother now? You will get free from her?"

He said hoarsely and, pushing his chair so that Roen's hand could not touch his shoulder: "I will provide for her. She will be cared for."

He slumped into a long, agonized silence. Claire would be cared for! As when he went away! He saw her little hands slapped. He heard her so roughly scolded—felt her fling against him, sobbing. He could provide for her!

He would go home tonight and tell her this as she sat with her hands clasped on his knees—his frail, appealing child who leaned on him and needed him and told him with such happy trust that his eyes were kind.

This little delicate Claire who seemed so [illegible] now in her whiteness and [illegible], yet who bore so [illegible], who did not even mourn aloud for the mother she had so tragically lost. He knew that she dreamed of her mother—that in the dream she heard her mother cry out in the death agony. He knew this because one night he came home and found her sitting up in bed, hugging her hands together. He thought she was in pain.

"No," she said, trying to smile, hiding from him her [illegible] hands. "I only dreamed. I dreamed of my mother lying near me—dead—It is not bad to [illegible] Mark."

But her eyes that were wide and haunting in their [illegible] clung to him. And her hands clung to him happily and were at peace.

He would tell Claire that he was leaving her. He would get a nurse to care for her. He would say this to her. And because she was so proud and in a way very brave, she would keep on smiling. She would ask as a child might: "Oh, you are going to leave me, Mark. Must you?"

He suddenly recalled the doctor's words: "Any shock will prove fatal. You must safeguard her—help her bear this."

Do You Know—

The largest breed of chickens known at present is the Jersey black giant.

In a silkworm's cocoon there are from 500 to 1,200 yards of silk.

London consumes about thirty-five gallons of water every day for each one of its population.

Gnats' eggs are always laid on the surface of water, fastened together in boat form.

The average thickness of the skin of the hippopotamus is two inches.

Except for certain apes, animals are immune from measles.

Jazz bands are to be added to the attractions of London parks, where concert parties are already popular.

so much nicer," she assented. For the moment the prospect of being all alone with the man she loved made her forget or ignore the unconventional aspect of such a departure. She smiled up at him brightly. "Besides, you look too frightfully cross to lunch in public," she jested. "Are you angry with anyone? I hope it's not with me."

Meldreth took his seat beside her in the car.

"You know it's not you," he answered. "I couldn't be angry with you even if I had cause, which is extremely unlikely. You'd never go out of your way to upset a person, would you, Jill? You'd want to make everyone happy if you could."

"Well, I'd hate to make anyone unhappy," she replied. "Have you just come from—your wife?"

The utterance of those words hurt her. The words implied or should have implied such nearness and dearness . . . She was aware they stood for neither now; but once upon a time they had. Jill loved him so ardently that the mere consideration of that faraway time when he had adored his wife pained her a little to think of.

"I've seen Lena this morning, yes," he answered. "But I've come straight from my solicitors, and that's what made me late."

"And bad-tempered," she teased. "Do smile! Or can't you smile today?"

"I don't think I can smile," he answered; "only curse. I would like to see every woman at the bottom of the sea—excepting yourself. For sheer mule-ishness, hard-headedness, and cold-blooded [illegible] own sex. [illegible] hat. Here's Bou[illegible] through this door—not the [illegible]rant."

Jill followed Meldreth, who in turn was [illegible] by an [illegible] with a cat-like tread, [illegible] he did not notice in the gloom of the corridor but whom he recognized at once as soon as he threw [illegible] and [illegible] to let them pass. As usual, because he was ill-trained if nothing else, the servant [illegible] at Jill's [illegible] Jill.

"[illegible]," remarked Meldreth, [illegible] towards [illegible] which had [illegible] him face to face again with the [illegible] valet he had dismissed when at Beaulieu. "So you're here! [illegible]"

"Not so bad, my lord." Parton stood beside the dining table with a wine list in his hand and spleen in his heart. He loathed Meldreth, because Meldreth had found him out. What a face had had, bringing this girl here and greeting him carelessly as if there was nothing in it! "But I'm leaving next week, my lord," he added. "Going back into private service, my lord. It's more in my line—than this sort of thing."

He laid a disparaging stress on the words, which Meldreth perceived and Jill did not. It was not offence. It was the next thing to it.

"Well, I hope you'll stick to your job this time," remarked Meldreth curtly. "It pays in the end to give faithful service." He dismissed Parton from the conversation and passed Jill the menu.

"Choose for me," she said. "Let's have the same."

Meldreth made a selection of food and wine, and Parton went away.

"Confound that fellow!" Meldreth said, when the door closed.

"Who is he? An old servant?" Asked Jill. She had only seen Parton for a fleeting second once before, and did not recall his face.

"A rotter I employed for a month without reference, because he begged for a chance," Meldreth answered. "And he was down at Beaulieu with me that day when you were there, don't you remember? I gave him the sack directly afterwards."

The coincidence did not perturb Jill.

"It doesn't matter much, does it?" she asked. "I didn't remember him and I don't suppose he did me. Besides, there's no harm in our being together, is there?"

"No harm—except in the construction people would put on it," he answered. "I oughtn't to have asked you here, of course, but it was only for once, and I trusted we should escape notice. As luck will have it, we haven't. I'm awfully sorry. It's not too late to decide on the restaurant if you'd rather. I can ring and tell him."

"Not if you want to talk to me," she replied.

"I do—badly. I don't see any other way."

"Then it doesn't matter—for once," she answered. "You needn't worry about me. I can be unconventional if it isn't wrong. There's nothing wrong in our talking alone if there's something very important you want to say to me, is there?"

"It's very broad-minded of you to look at it like that," he replied. "In a sense, I'm [illegible] bringing you here."

Jill smiled at him serenely.

"I don't feel a bit damned—only just as usual," she answered. "So you needn't worry. What sort of people do come here, I wonder?"

There was a certain [illegible] in her tone.

"All sorts," he answered. "People who are going to be divorced, people who are bent on flirting; and a few lost souls like myself, who seek a few uninterrupted moments with the girl they love."

Jill's color deepened. His words thrilled her. That much at least was plain. He loved her! The declaration alone was a joy—so great a joy that she did not even dream of the pain that must follow in its wake as surely as night comes after day.

She did not reply. She was too [illegible] lunch. He remained on and off in attendance until the meal was over. A sheer waste of good food, he thought it, neither of them knowing what they ate, fair pecking at things—his lordship in a queer state, looking half [illegible] as if this girl was worth her weight in gold to him . . . and the girl herself . . . well, Parton could not class her. She had a rapt look in her eyes, as if she was really in love, not just carrying on . . . [illegible] and her color came and went, and she had drunk nothing but lemon-squash but she looked all lit up. It was evidently a case with the two of them . . . a pretty patent case.

Parton made out his bill and accepted a tip. Unfortunately the man[illegible] of any eavesdropping from without. . . . That lady's handkerchief he had picked up in Meldreth's room was a long time coming in useful . . . ditto the strand of golden hair he had found [illegible] brush, which still lay folded in tissue paper within Parton's wallet. Here was a case in point. His lordship and his girl [illegible] themselves, and yet no time to listen outside because he was hurried off his feet, here, there and everywhere.

Maddening! Most likely he was missing a [illegible].

Parton's [illegible] consumed him, casting round for any sort of excuse whereby he might invade the room again.

Five minutes later he was back once more forgetting to knock, [illegible]

Correct Manners Explained

By MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

I am eighteen years old and am invited out to dinner a [illegible] a few questions I am not positive [illegible]

1. If potatoes are served are they to be broken with the fork or cut in small pieces with a knife?

2. Is one supposed to cut one's meat all at one time, or just as one eats it?

3. If vegetables are served in a side dish, which are to be eaten with a fork and which with a spoon?

4. Is bread taken with the fork or with the fingers and when spreading, is it to be held in the hand?

5. If one is asked to take a second helping, should it be accepted or refused?

WITH the fork, cut off a small mouthful of potato, just as you would any other [illegible] and eat the mouthful before you cut off the next mouthful.

2. I am glad that you asked this question if there is any doubt in your mind—and apparently there is. Cut only one mouthful of meat at a time. Eat that before you cut the next mouthful. One of the most terrible—and I mean the word—breaches of table manners is to cut all of one's meat before eating a mouthful. Promise me you won't ever, ever, ever do it?

3. All are to be eaten with a fork, if possible. Vegetables nowadays are not served with juice or with much juice, and hence they are, conveniently and correctly, eaten with a fork. Whenever there is a choice between a fork and a spoon, make it your habit to choose the fork, if it is sensible to do so, rather than the more awkward spoon.

4. [illegible] you spread it.

5. It is perfectly correct to take a second serving of a food if you are asked to and if you wish it [illegible]

[illegible] finished a course. You do not hold your knife and fork in your hand [illegible]

Safer Summer Hygiene

Registered Nurse

INSTEAD of risking old-time "sanitary pads," 8 in 10 better-class women employ a NEW way called "Kotex." Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, it is 5 times more absorbent.

Kotex also deodorizes. It discards easily as tissue—no laundry. Thus, in three important ways, it solves a serious summer problem for women.

More than a mere sanitary pad, Kotex offers safe and certain scientific protection.

Obtain Kotex. For peace-of-mind's sake, accept no other. See that box is marked "Kotex." If it isn't, it is not genuine Kotex.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement [illegible] her condition for, according to her letter, she was subjected to no [illegible] amount of [illegible] health. For [illegible], her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and [illegible] do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

DAILY SHORT STORY

PEARLS FOR TEARS

By Constance Wardell

THERE they still lay like fat drops of spilled cream against the rich folds of black velvet in the jeweler's window. The woman caught her breath decisively and pushed open the wrought iron doorway of the shop.

"I saw pearls in the window. I have admired them all along," she said. "I should like to see them."

Mr. Gilis, jewel expert for the firm, spread the necklace deftly upon the counter.

In the presence of absolute beauty the woman caught her lip sharply between two small white teeth.

"Oh!" she gasped. And again, "Oh!"

"They are much too fine for me, I fear," she added after a long pause, closing her eyes flutteringly as if to shut out temptation. "They are frightfully expensive, of course. More than we should pay."

Gilis noticed now that she spoke with a slight foreign accent. French, he decided. She was beautifully gowned from the careless, knowing tilt of her impeccable sports hat to the trim heels of her expensive English walking shoes.

He held the slender rope of milky bubbles between himself and the light. They hung there warmly, pulsating with borrowed life.

"Thirty thousand," he said briefly.

"But how perfect!" she exclaimed. "We have just returned from a wedding trip abroad, my husband and I. He wanted me to have something from his own country, my new home, for a wedding gift. It was his own silly, patriotic notion, but now you've no idea how glad I am to have waited. I'm sure he won't think the pearls too expensive for we have been considering a diamond necklace, much more costly and not half so pleasing to me! Oh, you beauties! I can't part with you! I want you at once." She held them up to her slim throat with a gesture of possession.

Mr. Gilis looked at her inquiringly. She seemed lost in thought as she gazed down at the pearls. Suddenly an idea dawned in her eyes.

"My husband has an office in the Professional Building," she explained eagerly. Gilis liked her little girl enthusiasm combined oddly with an air of experience. "He's a physician, mental specialist, you know. Dr. Alexander Bradthwaite."

Gilis nodded, placing her swiftly now. The papers had just been full of brilliant young Dr. Bradthwaite's marriage to the charming daughter of some French countess or other.

"You can readily understand how busy he is," she was saying. "Office hours all morning and conferences all afternoon. Just now it's worse than usual for he is getting settled again after his long absence. I do hate to bother him to come over here and yet I can't wait another moment for my precious pearls now that I have found them. Could it not be arranged for someone to accompany me while I take them over for his approval? I'm almost sure he will like them if I do. And yet a wedding gift is always something that two people must choose together!"

Mr. Gilis was nodding pleasantly. This was a sure fire sale. Nothing likely to gum it up judging from the earnest glow in the woman's brown eyes!

Into an intimate nest of white cotton went the glowing pearls, into a soft suede pouch, into a seal box of white bridal satin. Oh, the wrappings and the bindings, the seals and the stamps before the precious package was entrusted at last to the hands of Blondy Adams, the firm's armed messenger boy.

Not far to the Professional Building, just two blocks over and three blocks up. But far enough, in the slow moving, traffic-jammed taxi, to give Blondy time for thought. The bride's eager profile was outlined against the window opposite him and her breath rose and fell deliciously. "Gee!" Blondy considered wistfully. "She's a pippin! Wish I were a prince or king or something!" Thus ever manhood's tribute to beauty as Blondy mused, hand on gun.

The nurse tossed a friendly smile in their direction as the door swung open to welcome them.

"Just a minute, Mrs. Bradthwaite. The doctor's dictating. He will see you shortly."

The slender caller glanced into the mirror, then pulled her chair confidingly close to Blondy's.

"Do you know I'm honestly shivering. I'm so afraid that he won't care for my adorable pearls. He wanted me to have diamonds, you see. He says pearls mean tears. Mr. Adams, would it be against all the rules if you let me show them to him alone just at first? Oh, I must have them! And a wife can coax in private without losing her self-respect!"

The nurse opened the door to announce pleasantly, "Mrs. Bradthwaite, please."

Blondy remembered his chief's whispered injunction. "Treat her just right, Blondy. She's O. K." He settled back comfortably to enjoy a momentary relaxation. Guarding valuable jewels, even in the hands of the reputable elite, is something of a tax. But the inner door opened again promptly and Dr. Bradthwaite himself ushered Blondy into the office. His wife was nowhere in sight, but the box of pearls lay on the desk. The physician busied himself with record cards and fountain pen while Blondy wondered uncomfortably whether he ought to inquire for the lady. Finally the doctor cleared his throat.

"Your pearls are within plain sight, sir. Mrs. Bradthwaite informs me you would be ill at ease without them. Now will you try to concentrate and answer some important questions for my chart." [illegible]

Blondy was on his feet in an instant, his gun drawn. "There's some mistake here, doctor. Maybe Mrs. Bradthwaite can explain. Where is she?"

The physician made an impulsive motion toward the pistol, but seemed to think better of it. "Sit down, please," he insisted. "May I ask you to regard me as a friend anxious to help you. Strange, our having similar names," he added soothingly. "Your wife says that is what attracted her to consult me in your behalf. She has merely stepped out to give us a chance for an uninterrupted interview."

Blondy's was a grim business and he lived in wait for crises. Here was an amazing one. "My name is Adams," he told the doctor calmly. "We're both dupes of a clever lady crook." He threw open the satin box. It was empty!

"Where's the girl?" he barked.

The doctor was dumb. For the first time he realized with swift intuition that this was no play acting on the part of a mad man. But there was no time for further discussion because Blondy had already found the curtained doorway that led to the street. [illegible]

Radio Dialog

By C. WILLIAM RADOS

If you cannot attend the Sharkey-Dempsey argument, or break your leg so you do not get the fight extra with the pictures, then the next thing to do is go over to your neighbor's and listen to his radio.

• • •

In case you are [illegible] of the very few who own radios, get new batteries, tubes and see that everything is functioning because otherwise the loud speaker may not work. We asked Y. Z. Brake of Faulty Heights to tell the readers of his experiences with fixing up the radio for a fight.

• • •

In his own words, Mr. Brake said: "After buying ten new tubes at $2.50 apiece, three small batteries, two middle-sized cells and six small dials, the total bill came to $46.03. However," explained the well-known expert, "this is cheaper than attending the fight in person, as I figure that it would cost me $18 to see the affair and I cannot afford to spend too much."

• • •

We guess the best thing to do is buy a two-cent fight extra, with diagrams showing where Dempsey broke his neck and the arrow marking the direction of the purse with $100,000.

• • •

Lured by reports that actors earned $1,000 a week, Big Brother Bob Emery and his Joy Spreaders radiated all over the B. F. Keith house last night in their initial performance as visible entertainers.

Emery was his usual modest, unassuming "Big Brother." Although the act was given the awkward position of being the last on the bill, it was the best last act we have ever seen at this house.

• • •

In contrast to some of our other radio entertainers, who have appeared on the stage, the Joy Spreaders were most pleasant and unsophisticated. Like boys they grinned and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. As musicians they may never set the world on fire, but they are sincere.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

PLASTIC surgery is becoming more popular all the time. A man with a face that only a mother could love is now able to get one that everybody can enjoy.

ONE homely man got marvelous results. He says it's a pleasure now to look in the mirror.

HE used to be so ugly that every time he walked in the garden all the milkweeds turned sour.

HE was so sensitive about his looks that he generally got somebody else to pose for his pictures.

HIS ears were so big the photographers had to take a panorama to get them in the photo.

AND even then, they stuck out of the frame.

HE had a profile made once and it looked like the "Spirit of St. Louis."

PLASTIC surgery is accomplishing wonders. A two-faced woman went to a doctor the other day and had both of them lifted.

SHE also had double chins but he was only able to silence one of them.

SHE had so many freckles that when her husband posed for a yeast advertisement, she played the part of the trout.

SHE kicked when the doctor charged her $500 for removing three moles. She said she was tickled to death they weren't gophers.

WHILE this surgery is supposed to be painless, any woman who has her jaw in a plaster cast for two weeks and can't talk, is bound to be suffering.

SHE didn't mind the operation but she hated to get behind in her gossip.

SHE left the hospital in a week, but it took her ten days more to catch up with her scandal.

THESE surgeons are getting wealthy over night. A homely man's face is the beauty doctor's fortune.

THEY can accomplish things that nature had to give up.

A BRAND new face is so easy to get nowadays that it's silly to go around with a used one.

How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. All druggists sell lots of it. [illegible]

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston Evening American.

A contractor who professed to be fond of children became very angry because a little fellow stepped on a new pavement before it was dry.

"I thought you loved children," said his wife.

"I do in the abstract, but not in the concrete," he replied.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

MOST of the masculine beauty in this world exists in woman's imagination.

• • •

Few men are actually beautiful; yet every man is beautiful to the woman who loves him. And far be it from him to dispute her taste!

These "male beauty contests" are almost as funny as would be an "intelligence contest" amongst goslings or guinea pigs.

• • •

The most beautiful man in the eyes of women all over the world, today, is Charles Lindbergh. Because when they look at his picture they do not see his features, but their own glorified vision of a hero! They see not a lanky, smiling, blonde boy—but a combination Hector-Galahad-and-Prince-Charming!

• • •

If a man only new that when a girl looks at him with that rapt, adoring gaze she does not see HIM, but a beautiful vision made out of the whole cloth of her imagination, he would lose a lot of his aplomb.

• • •

A man is merely the lay-figure on which a woman drapes her illusions—the hook on which she hangs her ideals and dreams.

• • •

She must shut her eyes to the little hump on his nose, the red line around his neck at the top of his collar, his Adam's apple, his feet and his elbows. She must pretend that his shoulders are four or five inches broader than they usually are, that his hair is not thin on top, or that his ears do not stick out.

• • •

To the woman who loves him, a pudgy little runt is a "pocket-edition Adonis," and a two-hundred pound lump of protoplasm is a "Greek God."

A blobby youth with a vaudeville line of wisecracks becomes a brilliant, witty man-of-the-world; and a pasty parlor-sheik is transformed into a subtle, fascinating "personality."

Woman is a master magician!

She can turn a brawny brute into a strong, silent, masterful caveman! She can take a selfish weakling and make a noble martyr of him! She can perceive "genius" in the pointless babblings of a bromide!

• • •

"I see the REAL MAN beneath the surface!" she protests. But what she actually sees is the IDEAL man, built of her own fancy and remodeled to fit the human being she happens to love. She goes to the altar with an imaginary demi-god—and wakes up to find herself married to a total stranger!

• • •

All this is awfully hard on a nice, decent, everyday sort of fellow, who would work his hands off to make her happy, and cannot understand that strange remote look in her eyes, when he goes around without his collar and demands boiled onions for dinner!

• • •

But if woman could not glorify and beautify man in her imagination, there would be mightly little masculine pulchritude and few "male beauties."

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid, gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Are you trying to hide behind a mask of cosmetics?

It can't be done! If your skin is red, rough or pimply, there is only one way to overcome the annoyance—get rid of the defects. You can do this easily by using Resinol Ointment daily until your skin is clear and smooth again. Apply lightly. Leave on skin about an hour (longer if possible), wash off with Resinol Soap. Pleasing results follow.

Stocks Rampant; Business Leaders Voice Optimism

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Every newspaper you pick up contains optimistic forecasts by business leaders, and the New York stock market continues to rise to heights never before attained.

Yet, privately, a good deal of grumbling is heard.

* * *

WALL STREET proverbially carries things to extremes. How much farther the upward movement will go no human being can foretell. The customary Summer quietness may be dispensed with and lively speculation whooped up, followed by still greater activity and bullishness after the country gets back to serious business in September.

B. C. Forbes

Or it may be that the Baldwin and Houston Oil and other daring pools will encounter obstacles before then and that the market will lurch and relapse.

* *

THIS MUCH should be pointed out: All stocks have not been marked up. As a matter of fact, the majority of issues on the New York Stock Exchange have not moved in step with the highly manipulated issues. Many stocks are actually lower than they were when the year opened.

Not a little discrimination has been exercised in the selection of issues. Broadly speaking, the most impressive advances have occurred in the shares of strong capably-managed industrial corporations and of railroads that have built up their properties and their earnings.

* * *

IT WOULD be inaccurate, therefore, to speak of "blind" speculation having been rampant. Most of the large-scale speculation has not been blind but rather has been selective and discriminating.

So we shall see what we shall see marketwise.

FINANCIAL fundamentals are sound. Industrial fundamentals are sound. Railway fundamentals are sound. Utility fundamentals are sound. Mercantile fundamentals are sound and agricultural fundamentals at least are sounder than they have been in other recent years.

* * *

ALTHOUGH brokers' loans have expanded $400,000,000 since February, the Federal Reserve banks are able to report a substantially higher reserve ratio than a year ago. Call money is available at 3¾ to 4 per cent, and time funds around 4½ per cent. The best commercial paper is quoted in New York at 4½ per cent. Strictly monetary conditions, therefore, need occasion not the slightest apprehension. Only very mild firmness is likely to be caused by impending crop moving demands.

Inflation is absent. Indeed, the general price trend has been persistently downwards, and index numbers are now at or near the lowest in recent years.

Our railroads are still moving fully one million loaded cars weekly. Bank clearings—swelled by stock speculation—are running unusually high. Postal receipts are heavy. Public utility companies, as a class, are doing well.

THE SITUATION is, of course, two-sided.

There is room for quite a little improvement in the steel industry, the oil industry, the rubber industry, the lumber industry, the shoe industry, the woolen industry, the silk industry, the copper industry, retail trade, and in other directions.

* * *

AGRICULTURAL conditions, as is usually the case, are mixed. Cotton has at last returned to a price reasonably satisfactory to growers, at 18 cents or better, in New York, accompanied by very substantial increase in consumption. Very satisfactory wheat yields are forecast and quotations are close to last year's level. Estimates of a short corn crop have sent that commodity far above last year's returns. Livestock prices are distinctly lower than last year.

* * *

IN THE highest financial circles, the expectation is that the coming presidential campaign will not be destructive to business and employment. Radicals threaten trouble when Congress resumes, but no disruptive lawmaking is likely to result.

* * *

NORMAL Summer business conditions may be logically counted upon. Beyond that, one hesitates to offer dogmatic predictions.

BUCKLAND GETS CREDIT FOR N. H. PLAN

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

In State street circles I find Vice-President E. G. Buckland of the New Haven generally gets credit for the "New Haven preferred" plan. Mr. Buckland is a member of the bar as well as one of the country's leading railroad men. His services in connection with the proposed refunding of the New Haven's debt to the Federal Government have been widely commented on.

E. G. Buckland President Crowley

There is another prominent railroad man to be mentioned at this time. He has been an occasional and always welcome Boston visitor. He left school at 14. So far as I know, he has been unnoticed when colleges were handing out degrees. But a bronze bust, erected through the contributions of 2,400 friends, has recently been put up in his honor at Paducah, Ky., as a climax of a celebration held in his honor. He entered railroading, quit the railroad field, in five years worked to the presidency of Gulf Oil Refining Co., then re-entered railroading. He is Charles H. Markham, former president and now chairman of the Illinois Central System. The story of his achievements would occupy considerable space.

* * *

President Carl Gray of the Union Pacific recently stated that college men were not entering railroading. He said they did not care to go through the hard work necessary to land them in executive positions. Mr. Markham rose from the ranks of labor, like most other big railroad men of today.

* * *

Those who have been made to feel lack of a college education is hampering their chances of success should take note.

* * *

Reports at one time had it that Mr. Markham would become head of New York Central, following the death of President A. H. Smith. Instead, another riser from the ranks was selected, President Patrick Crowley. All these men started with scant funds and no influential friends to help them up the ladder of fortune. Mr. Crowley left school at fourteen.

MARINES IN NEV BATTLE WITH BANDITS

Managua, July 19 (I.N.S.).—Nic raguan bandits are reported to ha renewed their siege of the Unit States marines holding Ocotal a there is apprehension lest reinforc ments on the way to relieve the ga rison arrive too late.

Some two score of marines, und the command of Captain Hatfiel after having fought off a dete mined attack by General Sandin are now reported making a new e fort to hold out against the new a tacks.

Aeroplane squadrons have bee sent out to bomb the bandits and a tempt to drive them off with m chine-guns. One marine plane reported to have been broug down, but the pilot and gunner e caped.

There was a great deal of sni ing on the part of Liberals livir in Ocotal. The district is a ho bed of Liberal sentiment and Sa dinos has many supporters ther It was said that more than 100 re idents of the district joined fight.

Sandino's Defeat Is Step Toward Peace, Says Kellogg

Washington, July 19 (A.P.).—Th American government feels that th clash of marines with the forces General Sandino at Ocotal, Nica agua, is a step towards the restor tion of peace in the Central Ame ican republic.

This was the reply of Secretay State Kellogg to protests voiced the fifth Pan-American congre here against the marines' defeat the Nicaraguan general.

The Secretary related that Sand had held for ransom managers French and German concerns nea Octal and had seized the mine an American at San Albino, threa ening the latter with death. Wit the exception of Sandino's oper tions, Mr. Kellogg said "peace h been effectually re-established Nicaragua.

did it, before him, by flyin from heaven to earth and the from earth to heaven."

It's an excellent thought, bu not fair to Elijah, who, in "chariot of fire and horses o fire," went up "by a whirl an into heaven." See second Kings chapter two, verse eleven.

That happened 900 years before the birth of Christ.

Each newspaper needs an editor. The Baltimore News needed one when W. R. Hearst bought it. Now the Baltimore News has the largest daily circulation in Baltimore, and the biggest daily circulation in the entire South. The circulation of the Baltimore News has gained 50 per cent. since August, 1925.

Nothing succeeds like circulation, and publishers will study with interest the methods of the Baltimore News and Baltimore Sun, to learn just what it is that caused the eclipse of the latter.

Group life insurance covering large groups of employes now amounts to five and one-half billions of dollars in this country and insures the lives of 4,700,000 employes. The average insurance per worker is $1,200 as compared with $500 among employes of the same class carrying standard life insurance.

Group insurance costs about $60,000,000 a year, employers paying the biggest part, an interesting development in modern industrial civilization.

Primo de Rivera, prime minister and half-way dictator, says Spain is out of the League of Nations to stay out. Spain knows her mind on that subject. Uncle Sam ought to know his. Twice this nation voted by a plurality of seven millions against having anything to do with the League. It seems hard for our government to believe what the voters say when one section of high finance says something else.

Associated System

Founded in 1852

A Group of Public Utility Properties Operating in 15 States
Largely in the Eastern Half of the United States

Affiliated Managing, Accounting, Engineering and Financial Organizations

One of Earliest Group Operating Systems

The oldest property in the Associated System had its beginning in 1852 when the Ithaca (New York) Gas Light Company was formed. Later, in the 80's, the use of electricity became practicable. Several of the first electric light and power plants established in America have for many years been Associated properties.

Associated Gas and Electric Company

the principal unit of the system, incorporated in 1906, is one of the oldest group operating and supervising organizations in the country.

Long Experience of Executives

The management of the Associated System is in the hands of executives, many of whom began in the pioneer days and grew up with the industry, acquiring extensive experience as employees or consultants of public utilities throughout the United States.

To advise on financial policies the management has associated with it bankers of the highest standing with international reputation who from the beginning of their banking activities have been especially interested in public utility securities.

Also associated with the management as directors and trustees of the various corporations and voluntary associations directly controlling the operating properties, are commercial bankers and individuals whose advice and counsel are invaluable because of their wide business experience in other fields.

Aim to Extend Benefits of Public Utility Service

The personnel of the management is primarily interested in extending and increasing the uses and benefits of public utility service. The reinvestment of a large portion of the proceeds from operations together with the profitable employment of additional capital from customers and others makes possible the realization of this aim.

No matter how well-written the letter, an answer is necessary to close the transaction—an answer calling for effort on the other fellow's part. So, too, with a telegram, even though the answer be prepaid.

When you telephone, however, message and answer are combined. The personal touch is there.

Let a real salesman on the road mix acquaintance, salesmanship, personality and the telephone. He will cover more ground and produce better results than in any other way.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

A Cotton Mill's Wealth

Would YOU Divide It Now or Carry On?

The suggested selling out of the Lyman Mills presents a picture of what CAN happen when the chief industry, or one of the chief industries of a city, is owned by men whose personal ties and home town pride are elsewhere.

The Lyman was among the pioneers in Holyoke, is the oldest industrial organization in the city. It furnishes employment to 1,060 persons, numbers of them owners of real estate in the Paper City, others paying for their homes, a great many with children in the schools.

Meeting in Boston, one hundred miles away, four of the five directors of the mills recommend "liquidation." To them it is simply a "business" proposition. They say profits during the war years WERE "substantial," SO substantial that although "liberal" dividends were paid, "considerable reserves" were set up, "in anticipation of less prosperous times."

The less prosperous times have come, as the mill men expected and as everyone else knows. The Lyman has been losing money. It has, however, continued to pay dividends. Its credit position is strong. It owns approximately $700,000 in Government bonds. It makes sheetings, drills, lawns and fancy cottons. The fine goods end of the business has been showing a profit, but not enough to offset losses on coarse goods.

So, the four directors would sell out, leave Holyoke flat. Quit now, they say, and shareholders will get at least $165 for every share.

Strangely enough, the men whose business it is to SELL the product of the Lyman take the opposite view.

These selling agents are Minot, Hooper & Co., of New York. They own the largest single block of stock, too.

Minot, Hooper & Co., around whom some of the other stockholders are rallying, recommend that a cash dividend of 50 per cent. be paid at once and that the mills be kept running for at least two years. When it becomes apparent that the next election is not to be followed by any changes in the tariff, they say, the mills can be (1) run at a profit or (2) disposed of to better advantage. To quote from the circular of the selling agents:

> "This is the seventh year of depression in the manufacturing of cotton textiles. We do not know when the tide will turn, but we feel very strongly that at the present time a cotton mill would have to be sold at tremendous sacrifice as to machinery, land, building and water-power. When business improves—as it must in time—the Lyman Mills UNDER PROGRESSIVE MANAGEMENT can compete in costs with other fine goods plants.
> "The product of the COARSE mill could be produced considerably cheaper in the South than at Holyoke. TWO-THIRDS OF THE LOOMS, HOWEVER, ARE RUNNING ON SPECIALTIES THAT SHOW A PROFIT TODAY, and the running of the coarse mill cuts down the overhead very materially."

The question is to be decided at a meeting of the stockholders on August 4th. In the interim, no doubt, the public interest will be stirred, the mayor, the city government and the Chamber of Commerce of Holyoke heard from. If the stockholders were residents of Holyoke, professional men, bankers, merchants on the street, builders, realty owners and so on, the vote would be overwhelmingly the way of the selling agents; the Lyman would carry on and wait for a "break." Certainly, as the facts are presented by both sides, the Mills cannot be said to be in a bad way or be offered as proof that, under progressive management, they cannot be operated successfully.

People invest in the shares of an industrial corporation, however, with the expectation that they will make money from them. The plant may be in a town or city a thousand miles distant, in which they have no other interest. THEY cannot be expected to see, as it is seen by the Holyoke business man or the Holyoke banker, such a situation as this which has developed with reference to the Lyman.

In the two weeks that are left to them, however, Holyoke business man and Holyoke banker may be able to get to the Lyman directors with convincing argument. The passing of the Lyman Mills WOULD be a blow.

Want to Go to College?

YOU Can Do It

A young woman twenty-seven years of age was among this year's graduates from the High School in New Bedford.

She had taken 10 years to make the four-year course, but not all of this time was given to her books.

Laurinda Andrade came to New Bedford ten years ago, from Terceira in the Azores, bent upon making money enough to enable her to return home, enter the normal school, and fit herself to be a teacher. She still desires to teach, but not in the Azores.

There was no gold in the New Bedford streets, she discovered—she had been told that there was gold everywhere in the United States—so she turned to the mills, and began earning and saving.

In six and one-half years she has accumulated money enough to carry her over the high school course. She was in her twenty-second year, nearly ten years older than some of her classmates. Things that other girls wanted, and got as a matter of course, she had to do without. She was looking straight ahead, far beyond New Bedfford's high school, to a course in the women's college at Brown University. Going without non-essentials meant next to nothing to her.

When the big day came, at last, it was found that the young woman from the Azores was one of New Bedford High's "honor" students. This meant a New Bedford Women's Club scholarship, worth $150. Laurinda Andrade will enter Brown in the Fall. When she has won a degree she will teach, somewhere in the United States.

Is it necesssary to add a word?

Do YOU know someone who is not making use of her opportunities? What are her excuses? How does she deceive herself? DOES she deceive herself?

NEED PUNISHMENT, NOT RETALIATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A DISCUSSION has broken out again in regard to capital punishment. Almost every phase of this question has been discussed. It has been repeatedly asserted by both sides that capital punishment does and does not deter crime. Advocates for a stricter punishment of criminals clamor for the death penalty, while the advocates of civilization clamor for the contrary.

There is just one point in this discussion that seems to have been overlooked, and that is, the difference between punishment and vengeance.

We are all shocked by brutal murders and are all quite willing that the perpetrators should be punished, quickly and condignly. It is not a question of sympathy for the murderer. No sob stuff enters into the argument.

The question is, what is punishment?

Killing a man is not punishment. It is vengeance. Killing is too good and too merciful for most murderers. The pain is short.

There ought to be some other form of punishment. That form exists when you sentence to the penitentiary for life. This sentence should be irrevocable unless the criminal is found to be guiltless.

And the pardoning power should not be in the hands of the Governor. He has plenty to do without adding that burden to his already manifold duties.

It should be in the hands of a Commission duly appointed by the Governor and responsible for its actions.

If life imprisonment can be made secure and the possibility of pardon be made difficult, if not impossible, fewer people would demand capital punishment.

After all, the object of the whole matter is to protect society, not to wreak vengeance upon the criminal.

It is punishment we desire and not retaliation.

ARE YOU A WELCOME GUEST IN ANY HOME?

IF you would be a welcome guest in any home don't pay too much attention to the man of the house, if you are a woman, nor to wife, if you are a man.

Of course the husband of a pretty woman wants her to be admired by other men but not to such a point that he is overlooked.

The wife of a handsome or attractive man can get peeved very quickly at the woman who pays too much attention to her husband.

The married man or woman who commands attention from the opposite sex and delights in this power and seeks to exert it is likely to cause more or less dissension in home circles.

The person who sets deliberately about to gain the good will or special favor of a guest in the house and neglects his wife or her husband, as the case may be, is on a dangerous road.

The woman who frequently calls at the home of a neighbor in the evening and indicates that she is afraid to return home alone will not be a welcome visitor for long.

Women who object to this practice are not peculiar.

They are usually wise.

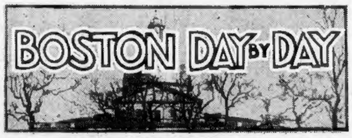
BOSTON DAY BY DAY



ON a hot night, if the breezes do not come to us, we must go to them. Carrying out Mohammed's precept—or was it Billy Sunday's—we stepped aboard for a "moonlight sail," around the harbor.

Breezes blew steadily in mighty great and welcome contrast to the city sultriness. This is one reason why so many pay the first installment on a yacht.

An orchestra played, comedians out of jobs (temporarily) made wise cracks, thereby showing why they were out of work, the crew looked as bored as possible, and the helmsman was thrown overboard when he steered the ship towards smellable Spectacle Island.

* * *

If the sight of navy sailors bother you, in Scollay Square, Hanover street, or the Ritz, take a trip on a boat. This is the only place sailors keep away from.

The landlubber soon learns the points of the compass due to the foresight of the harbor architect. As the wind blows from different directions the smell changes with the compass. By distributing several strategic points about Greater Boston, mariners declare they can sail by their noses. Spectacle Island, Fish Pier, East Boston, are the cardinal factors in the method of navigating.

"Where is the moon?" asked the temporary comedian. "To Salem Willows, reads the sign," said another wit. "I guess the captain means 'Salem Widows.'"

Did anyone ever ride on a boat without meeting those home-made musicians who strike up the barber shop harmonies. Our group on the forward bow rivalled (with distinct limits) those famous side shows put on by the local chapter of the Plymouth Ladies' Aid.

* * *

About two weeks ago a fleet of fourteen planes flew here from DETROIT. One of the planes had a monkey as a passenger which evidently became lonesome, so a kitten was added en route. No hint came of the discord which brewed as the plane flew Hubward. But the sad tale must be ended, for the kitten has been abandoned and now rests at the Hotel Lenox.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE want to live forever. But suppose we were given the chance; I wonder if we could stand immortality—

Eternity—That's a long, long time! What would we do with it? What do we do with our time now?

Well, most of us work hard and make money. But business and housework certainly won't figure in the plan after death. And when we aren't working we amuse ourselves. We go to shows and parties and ride in automobiles. We golf and fish and swim and dance and play bridge and tennis. But those things are all done with our bodies and we'll have to leave our bodies behind when we go. There should be ways of playing with our minds—but how many of us know them?

How long can YOU amuse yourself in your own mind—just by playing with your imagination—without watching any external thing or using your hands or feet?

Eating and drinking—they're out, of course.

Love making?

Yes, it's easy to see how some love could last for eternity—that deep understanding tenderness that doesn't depend on the curve of a lip or the set of a shoulder. But love like that is mighty rare. A great deal of our human love can't endure through the honeymoon, much less through eternity.

Then what is there left for us? If everything is tied up to the body—

But everything isn't tied up to the body. The most wonderful part of life isn't necessarily tied up to the body. Thought — we do not know what thought really is, but although it moves within the body it does not seem to be tied to the body.

It is easy to imagine a strong, rich mind having a wonderful life of its own, quite outside the body. Studying, dreaming, revelling in beauty, working its miracles of power through other minds—yes, a sturdy, well-organized mind could certainly have a glorious time through all eternity.

But how many of us have sturdy, well-organized minds? How many of our minds can enjoy beauty or find a thrill in study, or build lives apart from the things of the body?

Immortality—

Could you really stand it if you had it?

Or would you be bored to desperation after an hour of it?

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WHEN you burn old faded letters have you ever paused to think what the eager flames are leaving though they sear dim page of ink? Have you thought of hope's bright treasure that lies hidden in a line? Have you glimpsed the love and longing which through every word may shine? These, the visions bright as April, tender counsel, fond desire shall not wholly fade and vanish with the fading of the fire. Flames may flicker, lapping swiftly over every blackened sheet, till the message dims forever in the ashes at your feet, but the fire can never fasten cruel fingers, hot and bright, on the love that made these letters scrolls of wonder and delight. When you burn dim, yellow letters let this thought your loss assuage: flames can never mar the message traced by Love across each page!
